

Future Taxes on Airplane Plants Cause of Delays

Industry Fears to Expand Because of Extra-Normal Risks

Washington—(P)—Secretary Stimson reported today that the army had been able to sign contracts for only 33 of 4,000 planes appropriated during June, "chiefly" because of uncertainties over tax legislation.

The war department chief told a congressional tax hearing that "the fault" for such a limited number of plane contracts was not with the army and that "so far as I am aware" there had been no undue delay in the preparation of the army's specifications and designs.

The fault has not been with the defense advisory commission, he said, and "the representatives of industry have been earnest" in a desire to cooperate with defense agencies.

"The fact is," Stimson said, "we have all been facing a difficult problem with an earnest effort to cooperate."

"That problem arises in a large part from the fact that the entire program of airplane construction is so large that it necessarily involves a great expansion of existing plant facilities and the construction of new ones to meet the requirements of our army in the present emergency."

He added that risks were "inherent" in any business enterprise and that industry might be expected to undertake "normal risks."

"But the risk to industry of undertaking at the request of the government, to expand at its own expense its plant capacity, and then being left, upon a sudden cessation of the emergency with these expanded facilities useless," Stimson continued, "is one that is entitled to special consideration."

"Under these circumstances, the uncertainty of future taxation affected by this expanded construction not only fails to give the special consideration above mentioned but penalizes the situation."

Checking Cause of Slow Down Strike At Aviation Plant

Detroit—(P)—Richard T. Frankenstein and Richard T. Leonard, regional directors of the United Automobile Workers (CIO), today were sent to South Bend, Ind., today by the union to investigate reports of a "slow-down" demonstration at the Bendix Aviation corporation plant.

George F. Addes, secretary-treasurer acting as president in the absence of R. J. Thomas, said the international officials would not tolerate such an interference with production.

James F. Dewey, federal conciliator, also was on his way from Detroit to South Bend to seek a solution of the difficulty.

Anyway, It Sounds Alike

Many a young fellow promises his adored one that, if she'll only marry him, he'll ever be humbly grateful. And she believes him, only to discover, too late, this sad, sad rhyme: Instead of humbly grateful, he turns out to be grumbly hateful. Though rhyme and rhythm oft tell the truth, it is best to stick to prose, especially in your classified want-ads in The Post-Crescent.

Threat of Alaskan Invasion Thrown Into Draft Debate

Burke Seeks to Change Bill
To Register Men Up to 44 Years

Washington—(P)—Senator Wheeler (D-Mont.) challenged proponents of conscription legislation today to advocate publicly a declaration of war against Germany if they fear a Nazi attack on the United States within six months.

Washington—(P)—Senator Holman (R-Ore.) said during opening debate on military conscription today that he had "learned from authoritative military sources of imminent peril of the invasion of Alaska from the Pacific and the endangering of the entire Pacific slope."

Holman interjected his statement without amplification while Chairman Sheppard (D-Tex.) of the senate military committee and others were discussing the Burke-Wadsworth compulsory military service bill, enactment of which Sheppard said is "a tragic necessity" because rearmament must be accomplished speedily.

Overwhelming senate passage of the bill authorizing the president to muster the national guard and army reserves emboldened conscription advocates to propose a broader registration program under the Burke-Wadsworth compulsory service measure.

Just before the senate began momentous debate on the conscription issue, Senator Burke (D-Neb.) disclosed that he had drafted an amendment calling for registration of all men from 21 through 44. The bill approved by the military committee fixed the ages at 21 to 30, inclusive.

Vote Encouraging
Burke said the senate's 71 to 7 vote yesterday in favor of legislation which could put the guard and reserves into active service was encouraging to those who want to increase the number of men subject to possible conscription.

His proposed change, he explained, would make 24,000,000 men subject to registration, instead of the 12,000,000 contemplated in the committee-approved measure. In either case only those from 21 through 30 would be liable for immediate draft and military duty.

The senate adopted unanimously an amendment by Senator Pittman (D-Nev.) to permit guardsmen and reservists with dependent wives or children to resign within 20 days after enactment of the measure. Only the day before the chamber had defeated a proposal to let any enrollee quit the service.

Defeat Amendment
Administration forces aided by some Republican votes, beat off 39 to 38 an amendment by Senator Adams (D-Colo.) to restrict use of the guard to the continental United States, American possessions and the Philippines.

As the bill now stands its operations would be authorized anywhere in the western hemisphere. Had Adams' amendment been adopted, the guard could not be sent to Latin America.

Conscription foes said the close vote against this amendment indicated that there was much latent opposition in the senate to compulsory service.

Approximately 396,000 guardsmen, reserve officers, enlisted reserves, retired officers and retired enlisted men would be subject to call for a year's service under the bill.

Heil Picks Milwaukee For Guard Plane Base

Milwaukee—(P)—Governor Julius Heil announced yesterday the choice of Milwaukee over Madison as the site of Wisconsin's proposed $300,000 national guard air base, promising at the same time that a second air base, assured by "competent sources" at Washington, would be located at Madison.

The governor, who revealed his choice at a meeting here attended by 5-man Milwaukee and Madison committees, said there was reason also to believe the state would receive a third squadron by Jan. 1, and that this would be awarded to Superior.

The three-hour conference was enlivened by sharp exchange between Heil and Colonel J. W. Jackson, executive director of the Madison and Wisconsin foundation, who sought the first air base for Madison.

Approval of either Madison or Milwaukee as the site had been made by the war department, the decision to be made by Heil.

Ground for the new air base is expected to be broken between Sept. 1 and 10, and a $300,000 WPA grant for building shops and the necessary hangars at the county airport is expected to be authorized soon.

Adjutant General Ralph M. Imnell said the officer personnel would consist of one major, six captains, 11 first lieutenants and 13 second lieutenants, who would be in command of 136 enlisted men. Hangars to be erected would house 14 planes.

Heil, after listening to arguments presented by a score or more of persons at the meeting, said:

100 to 1 Guard Will Stay in U. S., Roosevelt Says

States Restriction
Would be Dangerous
If Troops are Needed

Hyde Park, N. Y.—(P)—President Roosevelt said at a press conference today the betting odds were 100 to 1 that the national guard never would have to go outside the limits of the United States or its possessions in peace time.

He made that statement in discussing an amendment, defeated before the senate passed a bill to permit him to call out the guard and organized reserves for federal training, which would have limited their service to the continental United States and American possessions.

The betting odds are 100 to 1 that they would never leave the United States or its possessions, the chief executive asserted, but one little restriction like that contemplated in the amendment might tie things up in some very great emergency.

But with the odds literally 100 to 1, and not even 5 or 10 to 1, he said, it is not a matter of very great public interest.

His remarks were made after a reporter observed that Senator McNary (R-Ore.), the Republican vice presidential nominee, had voted for an amendment to the training bill which would have confined guard activities to the continental United States.

While he had only glanced at the papers, Mr. Roosevelt asserted, he understood the amendment would have permitted service in the nation's possessions and the Philippine Islands. That, he said, is a very different thing.

Set Acceptance Date
The president disclosed that he and Secretary Wallace, the Democratic vice presidential candidate, had decided at a conference yesterday that the secretary should formally accept his nomination Aug. 29 in Des Moines.

"Is there any possibility of your inspecting defense bases on the west coast this summer?" a reporter inquired.

The chief executive told his interrogator that if he thought twice he would realize what an inspection would violate what he termed one of the essentials—that the president has to be within very easy reach of the bases.

Vital Patents Held by Reich

Grand Jury Checks
Into Charges Holding Up War Production

New York—(P)—Thurman Arnold, assistant United States attorney general, today declared a special federal grand jury had uncovered considerable evidence tending to show that patents vital to United States war industries are German-controlled.

Arnold made this statement in discussing the grand jury's investigation of charges that production is restricted and prices fixed in some of the country's war industries.

Government investigators are seeking to determine whether a production "bottle neck" is threatening to retard the defense program.

Arnold, who came from Washington to take temporary command of the probe being conducted by his assistant, Samuel S. Isaacs, said that eight federal grand juries now sitting in Los Angeles, San Francisco, Seattle, Chicago, St. Louis and other key cities were prepared to investigate any anti-trust law violations occurring in the food, fuel, housing, drug or other vital war industries.

He said the juries are being utilized as a "fluid system" to handle what he termed the emergency.

The national defense board, he said, is working in complete harmony with his investigators and is "constantly kept in touch with what we are doing."

Arnold attributed German control of vital war industry patents to normal business trends and said: "It is an economic 'fifth column' and not a malicious 'fifth column,' and must not be attributed to espionage."

Manitowoc Woman Is Granted Parole

Mrs. Lester confessed shooting her husband during an argument following her discovery of him with another woman at a roadside between Manitowoc and Green Bay, it was charged by John Cashman, Manitowoc county district attorney, at Mrs. Lester's trial.

Louisiana Cities Seek Outside Help as Rains Flood Lowlands

Crowley, La.—(P)—Southwest Louisiana cities, in some instances completely flooded by nearly 20 inches of continuous rain in the last 48 hours, called today for outside aid.

The business section of Crowley, a city of 10,000 population in the heart of the Louisiana rice belt, was under 15 to 24 inches of water. The rain continued this morning.

W. J. Cleveland, chairman of the emergency relief organization, said: "What we need is boats so we can get out and see what the people need."

The schools and warehouses are filled with refugees. We are running out of food. We need milk, bread and some health officers. We have appealed to the governor and the Red Cross and we understand boats are being sent by the Red Cross.

Lafayette, a city of about 20,000 population, reported an official rainfall of 19.63 inches for the 24 hours ended at 7 a. m. today with a slight rain continuing.

Every street in the city was flooded, including the main business section, the water varying from several inches to several feet deep.

Nearby cities from New Iberia west to Lake Charles were similarly affected by the torrential rains following a coastal tropical storm.

Reports from the outlying sections were meager but highway traffic was blocked. Crops were submerged or washed away and hundreds of families were driven from the lowlands in a half-dozen parishes.

Italians Too Suffer Losses In Air Fight

London—(P)—Germany paid with loss of at least 60 planes for yesterday's wholesale aerial assaults on British shores and shipping, the air ministry reported today, as Nazi air attacks continued.

In all, the ministry said, 60 German planes were destroyed "and many others damaged"—a total of about one in seven of "some 400" Nazi raiders it counted in the raids—the greatest attack in British history.

A loss of 16 British planes was acknowledged, but the air ministry said three pilots counted previously as missing are reported safe now, two of them wounded.

The German high command asserted that British losses were 49 planes shot down near the Isle of Wight in the English channel and off the port of Dover. German losses, it said, were only 10 planes shot down and two which had to make forced landings.

An authoritative source said the German communiqué, reporting 12 merchant ships totaling 55,000 tons sunk in the forays, "multiplied by three" the British losses.

Contrary to the German report, this source said, the attacked convoy "contained no tanker nor, indeed, any ship approaching the tonnage figures for single ships given in the German claim."

Bomb Coast Town
Two German bombers were shot down today, one by anti-aircraft fire after it had bombed a northeast coastal town and the other by three Spitfires off the northeast coast. Three of the crew of the second Nazi plane were captured in a rubber boat.

Although the intensity of the attacks apparently had slackened, the air ministry reported scattered raids throughout last night and today. It disclosed there had been "some damage and to property and some casualties, one of which was fatal," in southwest England.

Renewed bombardments of the Strait of Dover, the Bristol channel, northwest England the Midlands also caused some damage and killed "some" persons. Casualties, however, were said to have been "few."

Scold Cudahy For Talking

State Department Says
Envoy to Belgium
Violated Instructions

Washington—(P)—John Cudahy, American ambassador to Belgium, was reprimanded publicly by the state department today for his press interview in London on Belgian food conditions and other aspects of the German occupation of that country.

Summer Welles, acting secretary of state, reading a formal statement at his press conference, said that Cudahy, by direction of President Roosevelt had been requested to return to the United States immediately for consultation.

Cudahy, the statement said, had given the interview "in violation of standing instructions of the department of state and certain of the views expressed by the ambassador are not to be construed as representing the views of this government."

The incident, the statement continued, "illustrates once again the importance which must be attributed by American representatives abroad to the department's instructions to refrain at this critical time from making public statements other than those made in accordance with instructions of the department of state."

Cudahy was criticized in the British press for the interview in which he said that conditions approaching famine would result in Belgium this fall unless American food supplies could reach there through the British blockade.

Cudahy also was quoted as saying that the German soldiers of occupation conducted themselves possibly better than would have American troops under such circumstances.

Washington—(P)—An accurate count of the letters received by Representative Johns (R-Wis.) on proposed compulsory military training, he says, shows his constituents stand: for the proposal, 2, against, 498.

He was unconscious for several hours but was in an improved condition today.

2 Statements by Kabat Confuse Pardons Board

Catlin Says Slayer Is Sorry; Other Statement Protests His Innocence

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
Madison—Counsel for Wenzel Kabat, who has served more than three decades in Waupun state prison for the murder in 1905 of Michael McCarthy of Kaukauna, reiterated in a plea before the state pardon board late yesterday that Kabat is repentant for his crime and has repudiated his previous protestations of innocence.

Mark Catlin, Jr., of Appleton, representing Kabat, appeared before the board for the second time in Kabat's application for executive clemency to discuss an apparent conflict in his client's present plea and an alleged statement recently given to state prison authorities.

According to a record on file in Kabat's case, Dr. Peter Bell, prison psychiatrist, took a statement from the prisoner in which he repeated the claim he had made during all the years of his long sentence, that he was innocent of the slaying of the Kaukauna farmer, and that public opinion and circumstantial evidence forced his conviction in the Outagamie county circuit court 34 years ago and his sentencing for life.

At the first pardon hearing last month Catlin pleaded repentance for his client, and board members called attention to the conflict with the prison report of Dr. Bell. Catlin arranged a deferment of the case. Yesterday he appeared with the statement that Kabat had authorized the plea, and denied Dr. Bell's alleged interview. Catlin asked a further postponement of the case in order to consult Dr. Bell on the particulars of the record.

The board also had under consideration today the appeal of Glenn Barker of Shiocton, sentenced for second degree murder in the Outagamie county circuit court three years ago for the killing of his sweetheart, Helen Welhouse of Little Chute, whom he stabbed in the neck during a jealous rage at a rural dance hall, according to evidence produced at the trial.

Barker's lawyer, Catlin, produced a letter from the trial judge, Edgar V. Werner of Appleton, suggesting that conviction for second degree manslaughter, which carries a sentence of from four to seven years, would have been proper because of expert testimony that the girl would not have died had she received adequate medical attention after being wounded. It was said that amateur first aid efforts resulted in suffocation and strangulation. Barker's present sentence is from 14 to 25 years.

He is now eligible for parole, and comments of pardon board members indicated that they may recommend parole for the youth. George Ballhorn of Milwaukee, board chairman, asked Catlin if "parole would meet the situation." Catlin said it would be welcomed, but also asked for a commutation of sentence to the manslaughter charge.

Urges U. S. to Care for Own Children Instead of Refugees

Indianapolis—(P)—Homer Shaul, director of Americanism of the American Legion, disapproves of proposals to provide asylum for refugee children from England in the United States.

"A lot of us have fallen for that tommyrot—the poor little kiddies of Europe," he told the national convention of the military order of the purple heart last night.

"In the first place, we have 2,000,000 boys and girls of our own who are juvenile delinquents for economic and social reasons. Let's solve that problem first."

"But that's not the most important reason. Just a few hundred of these children are from good English families. These are the ones who are being publicized."

Re-Germanize Two Provinces

Alsace, Lorraine Apparently are to Become Part of Reich

BY CHARLES S. FOLTZ JR.

Basel, Switzerland—(P)—The German army of occupation and Nazi civilian officials in Alsace-Lorraine rapidly are putting the finishing touches on re-Germanization of the two provinces which apparently await only the stroke of a pen on a peace treaty to make them officially part of the German Reich once more.

They are proceeding thoroughly in transformation of the area won for Germany by Chancellor Bismarck, lost by Kaiser Wilhelm in the World war and now won again by Adolf Hitler.

Berlin reported only this week that Hitler had turned over the entire civil administration of the provinces, hitherto in military hands, to civilian officials.

Alsace and Lorraine have been incorporated, respectively, into the Baden and Saar postal systems. An ordinary German stamp is being used instead of the surcharged type introduced in German-occupied Poland or the ordinary French stamps used in other Nazi-occupied areas of France.

French no longer is recognized as the official language of the two provinces, where it formerly shared a place with the prevailing German in courts under the French rule. Last night German soldiers removed the signs on Wildemannstrasse (Wildman street), one of the main thoroughfares of Mulhouse and put up new signs naming it Adolf Hitler street.

Shift Hunt for Escaped Women To Joliet Area

'Blonde Tigress' and Companion Evade Blockade Near Prison

Dwight, Ill.—(P)—The hunt for two escaped women convicts swung today from the Dwight Women's reformatory area to Joliet after two men reported having seen them hiking toward Joliet.

Eleanor Jarman, notorious murderer, and Mary Foster, bank robber and thief, fled from the reformatory yesterday.

Although Warden Joseph E. Ragen of the state penitentiary at Joliet said it was possible the women still were hiding in one of the many cornfields around Dwight, Miss Helen Hazard, superintendent of the reformatory, said she had information indicating they were en route to or had reached Joliet.

Miss Hazard said a farmer named Good reported he picked up two women on Highway 66 before noon yesterday and gave them a ride to Morris. He said they told him they were going to Joliet. He did not know who they were, he said, until the escape had been broadcast.

A filling station attendant in Shanahan reported two women stopped there and told him they were going to Joliet. Two women were seized last night at Moline but were freed when it was established that they were not the fugitives.

Hitched a Ride
Miss Hazard said she believed the women had obtained a ride and were well outside the reformatory area before their disappearance was discovered and a highway blockade set up.

Mrs. Jarman, 36, was known as the "blonde tigress" for her rough treatment of holdup victims. After engaging in 23 robberies with two men companions, she was sentenced to 199 years for participating in the killing of Gustave Hoeh, 71-year-old haberdasher. He was slain during a holdup in 1933.

Miss Foster was serving a one to 10 year term for larceny. She was convicted in January, 1939, of stealing clothes and jewelry valued at $10,000 from Chicago homes where she worked as a maid. As Margaret Allen she served two years in the federal prison at Milan, Mich., for bank robbery.

Climb 12-Foot Fence
The women escaped from the cottage-type institution at Dwight by climbing over a 12-foot fence topped with barbed wire.

Their prison bars were found in a cornfield less than a mile away. There they apparently had donned dresses stolen from the room of a reformatory employee.

Guards from Pontiac reformatory and Stateville prison were summoned to aid state police in the search. Warden Ragen sent a plane aloft to scout cornfields from the air.

Miss Hazard said the escape was discovered when the two women failed to appear for lunch. The fugitives had been doing housework in one of the buildings until an hour before noon.

Miss Hazard said that one of the escapees apparently fixed the safety catch on a door when unnoticed by Mrs. Elta Tranbarger, a warden on duty in the building.

Mrs. Jarman was the first woman to be sentenced to a 199-year term in Illinois. She was convicted in September, 1933, along with George Dale and Leo Minneci. Dale, who fired the shots that killed Hoeh, was executed and Minneci sentenced to 199 years.

Nazis Must Act Soon to Avert War of Attrition

BY DEWITT MACKENZIE

New York—(P)—The Idaho Falls Post-Register has asked me to indicate the "relative chances of the two belligerents for victory in case Hitler delays his invasion until after the middle of September when weather will probably force him to delay until next spring."

That seems like rather a tall order to me, especially since I have firmly in mind that a prophet who makes a bad guess is without honor not only in his own country but all others.

However, the question is legitimate and there may be some useful observations which can be made on the basis of facts at hand. I have before me a partial answer, from the British viewpoint, countering the German claim that they are secure in all departments and have the battle of Britain in a sack. This is in the form of 14 favorable factors which the military correspondent of the York-Shire (England) Post claims for his country.

Gives Summary
I want to give this summary first. My reason for quoting the Post is that it belongs, as I understand it, to the family of Anthony Eden, British war minister, and is supposed popularly to express his views frequently. I don't know that the following represents Captain Eden's ideas, but I should be surprised if the Post published military opinions running counter to those of the British war office. Here are the points:

"1. The German army failed in June to follow up the withdrawal of the British expeditionary force when there was a chance.

"2. We now have a mighty force in Britain and strong defenses.

"3. The royal air force has achieved moral superiority.

"4. The blockade is closing the last loopholes for supply.

"5. Enemy power has failed to interrupt imperial and American sources of supply.

"6. We have more food and materials in this island than ever before, and the navy sweeps the seas.

"7. Hitler's forces are widely dispersed on a sea-line from the Arctic to the Pyrenees.

"8. His vast coast-line has no ships enough to protect it or to escort maritime invasion.

Burdens to Germany
"9. Italy's position is a burden to Germany, who may have to give material help, especially if Italy is attacked as our main offensive.

"10. Britain controls the Mediterranean and separates Italy from her colonies.

"11. We are confident of repelling massed air attacks and our fighter planes increase daily.

"12. We have achieved superiority in bombing and attack.

"13. We are united and resolute, while Hitler has trouble in the conquered lands, as well as in the Balkans.

"14. Russia again cramps German freedom."

If Herr Hitler doesn't win the conflict by blitzkrieg in the immediate future, it probably will settle into a war of attrition. The chief feature of this will be a starvation contest—blockade and counter-blockade. I see no reason to change the view expressed in this column before—that grains of wheat are likely to have more to do with the outcome of the war than will bullets.

Terrific Onslaught
The nazis are making a terrific onslaught with bombers, u-bats and fast torpedo-boats in an effort (1) to break the British blockade and (2) to establish a counter-blockade. The destruction of shipping has been heavy. At the same time the English blockade has remained so tight that John Cudahy, American ambassador to Belgium, earlier this week in discussing the food situation said to newspapermen:

"If you gentlemen think the condition is a howling hell now, what do you think it will be this winter?"

The other day the German radio quoted French political circles as saying the French government had appealed to the United States to exercise pressure on Britain to ease the blockade. Berlin doesn't circulate statements like that unless the blockade hurts.

I believe the consensus of neutral military experts is that a short race and a fast one would suit Hitler, but that in a long run the advantage should be with the British because of vastly superior resources and command of the seas. Should Hitler be able to break the blockade and thus destroy his enemy's sea-control, he might have John Bull on the hip.

Approve Bill To Call Guard
Wisconsin, Michigan Senators Vote With Majority on Measure

Washington—(P)—Senators Wiley (R) and LaFollette (P) of Wisconsin, and Brown (D) and Vandenberg (R) of Michigan all voted yesterday with the senate majority which passed legislation, 71 to 7, authorizing the president to call out the national guard and reserve forces for active training.

Wiley voted with the group which rejected by a 39 to 38 count an amendment by Senator Adams (D-Colo.) which would have limited use of the national guard and reserves to continental United States, American possessions and the Philippine islands.

Senators LaFollette, Brown and Vandenberg all voted in favor of the Adams amendment.

During debate on the amendment, Vandenberg said he would vote for the bill and would later vote against peace-time conscription.

"If necessity ever arises for sending the national guard outside the United States," he said, "it is a decision in which congress should specifically participate."

As for conscription, he added, "if and when primary peace time methods fail" he would support it.

Scores Liquor As Menace to U. S. Welfare

W. C. T. U. Head Says Traffic Is 'Most Dangerous 5th Column'

Chicago—(P)—The liquor traffic was described today by Mrs. Ida B. Wise Smith, national president of the Women's Christian Temperance Union, as "a most dangerous fifth column" menacing the nation's welfare.

"It is not a totalitarian foe from the outside, but one entrenched behind millions of invested capital and behind federal and state laws written under political pressure," she said in a prepared address to the 66th annual W. C. T. U. convention.

She termed saloons "breeding centers for lawlessness" and asserted they were playing youth and adults throughout the nation with the virus of anarchy and disorder.

Mrs. Smith expressed the opinion that wartime prohibition probably would be enacted if the nation went to war.

Threatens Prosperity
"The first thing you need in war is food," she said. "And grain is used in the manufacture of drink. Then you have to preserve the efficiency of men—and a drinking man is not efficient."

Asserting that the liquor traffic was threatening industrial prosperity, and menacing "our very rights as free people," Mrs. Smith said statistics showed:

One saloon for every 71 families in the United States; two saloons for every church; five saloons for every three public schools; three dollars spent for liquor for every two dollars expended for education.

"In every city or cross-roads where the saloon has come back," she said, "political corruption is steadily growing into a power defying every measure for public welfare that threatens to curb or restrict it."

Expect Work Will Begin Soon on Dam

Weyauwega—Work is expected to start soon on the construction of a dam at the outlet to White lake to raise the water level. The Wisconsin Conservation Commission at its last meeting authorized the expenditure of $700 for material. The county will contribute the machinery to complete this W.P.A. project.

Mr. and Mrs. Matthew Knipple of Milwaukee are guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Hanaman. The two women are sisters.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry MacIntyre and daughter Patsy will leave Monday for their new home in California.

The city council has received a petition having 57 signatures, asking that action be taken to regulate radio interference. Judson Starks was appointed as an extra on the police force.

Mr. and Mrs. Leo Richter entertained nine guests on the John Richter lawn on Tuesday afternoon, it being the fourth birthday anniversary of their daughter, Mary Lou.

Keep Job Application File Active—Gehrke

Recent graduates who have applications for jobs on file at the Appleton office of the Wisconsin State Employment Service were urged today by F. R. Gehrke, manager, to "keep them in the active file."

By simply calling monthly, the young people will guarantee themselves against loss of any opportunity for employment, Gehrke pointed out.

The manager reported that the office "can always use" applications from girls and women interested in domestic work.

and do so "while there is yet time."

Vandenberg read a legal opinion that, in general, members of the armed forces would not lose their voting right by virtue of their service.

Assassinated
Shanghai—(P)—Ma You-Feng, described as a lieutenant of Wang Ching-Wei, head of the Japanese-dominated Nanking regime, was shot to death tonight in the international settlement by an assassin who escaped.

This was the first political killing in the settlement since extra police measures against terrorism were adopted Aug. 6.

British Fight Off War's Biggest Raids Over Channel and Desert

The biggest air battle ever fought in Africa—a furious combat waged by British and Italian planes high over the burning Libyan-Egyptian desert—was reported today in communiques from Rome and Cairo. Each claimed the victory against a larger force of planes.

The African combat followed closely upon yesterday's greatest air fight of the battle for Britain, concerning which both the British and Germans published new and differing versions today, each side increasing the number of enemy planes it claimed to have destroyed.

The British said they destroyed 69 nazi planes and damaged many others in a swarm of 400 which attacked a food convoy off the south-eastern coast. The earlier London figure was 5 Germans shot down, 10 more believed downed, and British losses of 16.

The new Berlin version upped the British losses from 4 to 49 and admitted the loss of 10 planes, while repeating that the attack cost British shipping 12 merchant ships totaling 55,000 tons and seven more badly damaged.

In the African action the Italian said 18 of their planes fought 2 British craft with a loss of five to the British, two for the Italians.

But the British communiques said the Italians outnumbered the R. A. F. two to one, in spite of which the British "pressed home their attack with such determination that 1 Italian aircraft were destroyed," admitted the loss of two British planes.

In the Far East the British announced they were withdrawing 7 officers and 1,500 men from Shanghai, leaving about 10,000 British subjects and British investment estimated to be worth $800,000,000 under the protection of British navy units.

Besides the ships claimed to have been sunk by the German air force, the nazi high command also asserted Torpedo boats sank 17,000 tons of shipping in swift raids along the channel.

German air-raiders roared inland over Britain last night and today attacks that followed almost without letup day-long raids by a total of 800 planes on ship convoys and English channel defenses.

The Germans bombed towns along the east, south and west coasts, and in the midlands.

The British government said "some" persons were killed, although casualties were said to be few.

Neutral military observers in London speculated that long-threatened German invasion of Britain might be timed with Italian thrust now under way in Africa.

Government leaflets stuck under householders' doors warned Britain to "stay where you are," to keep from clogging arteries for emergency troop movements, and to "seek shelter and stay there" to keep from being killed in air-raids.

Ten scattered German radio stations went off the air and British interpreted this as an indication that the Royal Air Force was hitting back with the widest spread bombing yet attempted against the nazis.

Indian nationalist leaders voiced no immediate reaction to Britain's proposal of possible independence for India at the end of the war in a bid for war-help.

Premier Ion Gigur of Rumania announced that his government must comply with Adolf Hitler's orders to give up some territory to Bulgaria and Hungary, but never will yield the 75 per cent of Transylvania that Hungary has asked.

Clausen Pledges His Services to Wilkie

Richland Center, Wis.—(P)—Fred H. Clausen told a group of Republican workers last night that Wendell L. Wilkie would "take us off the skids and put us on the right road," and that "as the junior United States senator of Wisconsin beginning in 1941, I want to help him."

Clausen is a candidate for the Republican nomination for senator. "Where inexperience has existed in the New Deal, proven ability to handle big affairs in a successful way for the common good is now demanded," Clausen said. "Wilkie can perform that service."

WATCH COUNTY JAIL GO DOWN—Sidewalk engineers were given a chance to watch a new method of wrecking when razing of the county jail was started. A heavy weight was lifted by a machine and dropped on the reinforced concrete of the building to smash it to pieces. Talk among the sidewalk engineers during the last two weeks often has referred to the early days in the jail's history and the terms of various sheriffs. (Post-Crescent Photo.)

Razing of County Jail Recalls Early History

The old county jail is gone. Two groups of people are glad that the massive structure stands no more.

One group consists of city boosters who like to "point with pride" at the progressiveness of the city and its up-to-date buildings. The other group, perhaps smaller, consists of those hapless persons who once looked over the shady courthouse lawn from behind the bars.

Members of this alumni group want to forget that a jail ever stood on the site, while others are recalling the early days of the jail's history.

First Jail

When the first courthouse was erected, it was proposed to place a jail in the basement. However, the proposal was defeated and erection of a separate jail building was ordered in 1853. During building of the jail prisoners were kept in the jail at DePere.

In 1855 the county board voted to have a board fence, 12 feet high, erected about the jail at a cost of $200.

Five years later the board decided a new jail was needed and the contract for the work was given Williamson and Bates for $4,530. This new jail was completed in February, 1862.

In 1885 the county supervisors decided the second county jail was antiquated and that a new one was needed. Following considerable discussion, it was decided to build a "rotary" cell jail. This jail consisted of eight cells built in a circle which revolved on turning a lever, bringing the desired cell to the single entrance. The rotary cells were purchased from the Patent Rotary Jail company, Chicago, for $14,500 and the jail building was erected by Henry Paepke for $8,835. This jail was completed on March 1, 1887.

Establish Workhouse

It was just 11 years later that the county board decided that prisoners were having it too soft sitting in a cell and wanted them to work out their sentences. The rotary cells, it was said, were no longer safe. A county workhouse then was established west of Appleton but was abandoned in the early '20's.

The problem of building another jail again faced the county board in 1903, and the jail now being razed was voted 30 to 5. The sheriff's residence in connection with the jail had been built when the rotary cells were installed. Board members felt that this structure was good enough and it was decided merely to discard the rotary cells and build a new jail proper.

The work was done by the Hoffman Brothers Construction company, Appleton, at a cost of $15,103.

Soap Body With Thick Lather If Exposed to Chigger Mites

Madison—Have you heard of chiggers, those pesky insects which cause intense itching when they come in contact with the skin? The state medical society describes the "little mites" and explains their action on the skin which produces the severe itching.

"Chiggers," which are the bane of the camper's life, remain on their human hosts only temporarily, but while they are there they produce a very annoying irritation and eruption of the skin. They have six legs and are quite active, but so minute that they are often not seen until they have done some of their mischief.

"The larvae attacks the legs and accumulate in the regions of bands which bar movement, such as belts or girdles. They force their rostrum into the skin, provoking severe itching. Fever and insomnia may result. They feed in a curious fashion by means of external digestion of tissues upon which they are fixed. They secrete a substance probably of salivary origin.

Common Type

"The Tomblula irritans is the common type found in America. In July and August, they are found in enormous numbers in the grass and bushes, in fields and in moist swampy places.

"After being exposed to chigger

The building was completed in 1906, and during its erection prisoners were kept at Oshkosh.

Now in 1940 county prisoners again are being kept in the Winnebago county jail at Oshkosh during the erection of a new "cooler."

Judge Graass Makes Appointment; Bond Is Set at $25,000

L. E. Duclon, Green Bay, has been named receiver of the Wisconsin Cooperative Milk Pool.

Duclon, auditor and general manager of the pool, was appointed receiver by Circuit Judge Henry Graass at Green Bay. The court, sitting in the case yesterday, fixed Duclon's bond at $25,000.

On Monday, a voluntary assignment to Duclon of all the pool's assets was executed in Madison by Harry H. Jack, president of the pool, and H. F. Dries, secretary.

The organization's board of directors, meeting here last Friday, voted receivership in order to spread the pool's burdens as widely as possible, Jack said.

A statement of assets and liabilities has not been filed, but the estimate given Judge Graass as a basis for Duclon's bond placed assets at about $40,000 and liabilities at approximately $60,000.

Nation at War Can't Predict Its Course, Johnson Warns

Editor's note: The daily column by General Hugh S. Johnson is being substituted for Raymond Clapper's column while Mr. Clapper is on vacation.

BY HUGH S. JOHNSON

New York—General Pershing said that no matter what else we do to mix up in the European war, we shall never send an expeditionary force to Europe. On all the military probabilities he is right, as he usually is on such questions. But the unerringly certain quality about strategic planning is its unerring uncertainty—its utter unpredictability.

Who would have dreamed in 1913, for example, that before November, 1918 we would have more than 2,000,000 American soldiers in France—a larger combat force than Great Britain ever had there? I'll tell you some who didn't dream it—the president of the United States and the general staffs of Germany, France, England, Austria, Italy, Belgium and the U.S.A.

When the first selective draft started I wrote a memorandum, in July, 1917, suggesting that it be for 1,000,000 men—not to take them before they were ready, but to classify and warn those who would have to go. It came back ink-spattered by an angry pen-point that had punctured the paper and spurted indignation. It was initialed "W. W." and said, in effect, that the American people would never stand for a draft of a million men, that our contribution was to be largely money and supplies, that it was absurd to think of an offensive in any such terms—just as General Pershing says today.

That was perfectly understandable. The allies were then saying that all they advised was a "token" American force of a few divisions to "show the flag" and boost the French and British morale, that they needed our factories, our supplies, our money and the available shipping to keep business as usual much more than they would ever need our untrained levies. The enemy general staffs agreed. They did not count on Americans in mass until we actually began to send them, after the British debacle of March, 1918.

We in the selective draft organization never agreed. As the system started, it was not geared to get 100,000 men a month. In December, 1917, I revised the entire machine to examine and classify the whole 10,000,000 pool of manpower. A result was that when the pressure came in 1918 and the allies began to scream for "men in their undershirts," it was enabled to step up the monthly taking from some 30 or 40,000 to 400,000 men a month—without a ripple. I shall always believe that this change did much to win the war.

Anyway, it burned in on my mind the fact that no man is smart enough to foresee the course of war once the fateful decision is made to engage in it. We do a lot of talking about "defensive" war and "defend-

U. S. Geared to Turn Out 10,800 Planes a Year

Will Reach Production Capacity of 18,000 by 1941, Knudsen Says

Washington—(AP)—America's expanding aircraft factories are reported by the defense commission to be turning out warplanes at the rate of 10,800 annually.

By next January the 18,000-a-year mark will be passed, William S. Knudsen, the commission's production chief, said last night in a radio broadcast in which he and the other commissioners described their work during the last 10 weeks.

"Present production is approximately 900 planes per month," said Knudsen.

"By Jan. 1 the number will have risen to 1,500 planes and the volume will increase steadily thereafter. You might also be interested in knowing that in January 56,800 persons were employed in aircraft factories. Today the number is nearer 75,000."

Billions in Contracts

The commission announced that $1,792,000,000 in army and navy contracts—including $7,000,000 for combat planes—had been let in the last two months.

Asked when deliveries could be expected on combat materials, Knudsen replied:

"I expect that the tooling up process will more or less take up the balance of this fall, but by January substantial deliveries of most of the material should commence and by spring, 1941, production should be going at a good rate."

Sidney Hillman, labor member of the commission, said that about 80,000 persons are taking training for jobs in defense industries, and advised prospective trainees to apply to their nearest state employment office.

The shipbuilding industry, he said, now is employing almost 40,000 more persons than at the 10-year peak in 1937; the aircraft industry is employing 50,000 more; the machine tool and engine industries are employing 18,000 more.

Reports by other commissioners included:

Chester Davis, in charge of agriculture: "No defense program can succeed if farm income and prices are not maintained at a level which will keep the farm plant healthy in the defense front. Existing machinery developed during the past seven years is available to do this job."

Leon Henderson, price stabilization commissioner: "The president wants to avoid the familiar price spiral—like he saw in the last war—where wages, the cost of living and prices skyrocketed up and left the country with a post-war headache."

Edward R. Stettinius, Jr., in charge of raw materials, said a railroad in Brazil would have to be rebuilt to obtain needed supplies of high-grade manganese—a necessary alloy for the manufacture of steel.

Karl W. Fischer, assistant to Ralph Budd, in charge of transportation, said that steps already are being taken to strengthen 2,000 bridges in the country's 80,000-mile network of strategic highways so that they will carry the heaviest military equipment.

'Home' Is Theme of Royaltan Grange Meet

Royaltan—"Home" was the theme of the program presented by the Royaltan Community Grange at their regular meeting Wednesday evening. In charge was Mrs. Carroll Ritchie, state chairman of the home economics department.

Chairman Says Democrats Will Sell Campaign Book

Washington—(AP)—Edward J. Flynn of New York, the new Democratic national chairman, said today that the Democrats planned to sell a "campaign book" carrying "more advertisements than usual" because he knew of "no Hatch act provision against it at the time the book was started."

Grinning and chewing gum impudently, at a press conference, Flynn said the book, similar to previous ones, would sell for 25 cents and come out as usual.

Some one asked about the Hatch act's prohibitions, and both Flynn and Charles Michelson, Democratic publicity director, chimed in to say they knew of no such restrictions "at the time the book was started."

When reporters continued to question him, Flynn casually picked up a clipping and summarized a newspaper editorial which he said was printed Aug. 2 in the Chicago Times.

He said the book, similar to previous ones, would sell for 25 cents and come out as usual. Flynn said the book, similar to previous ones, would sell for 25 cents and come out as usual.

Representative Martin (R-Mass.) chairman of the Republican National committee, promptly issued a statement saying:

"Ed Flynn's statement that 'the Elwood notification committee for Willkie for president is putting out a book at $1,000 a page' is absolutely untrue and without any basis in fact. Neither the Elwood notification nor any other Republican group supporting Willkie is soliciting advertising in any kind of book or publication."

Martin said "a local group in Elwood" had started soliciting advertising, using "my name as 'honorary chairman.'" When he heard of this "unauthorized undertaking," Martin said, the Republican committee stopped it.

The courthouse night watchman who saw what was going on, appropriated the tin box which contained a statement that the building was dedicated April 18, 1906, copies of Appleton newspapers and a pamphlet containing county board proceedings.

Newspapers in the cornerstone included "The Evening Crescent," "The Fox River Journal," "Samstag's Bote," "Appleton Wecker," "Das Montags Blatt" and the "Appleton Daily Post."

Murray Lashes At Hull Powers

Says 1-Man Control Fundamental Mistake In Trade Treaties

Post-Crescent Washington Bureau Washington—Congressman Reid F. Murray, Waupaca Republican, told the house this week that the fundamental difficulty with the reciprocal trade treaties is the "delegation of legislative power to one man, Cordell Hull."

"If the lawyers of this country, who requested the passage of the Walter-Logan bill are justified in asking that delegated powers to government bureaus are subject to review by court procedure or hearings, am I not, as a congressman from a rural section, as fully justified in questioning the delegation of power to one man, giving him direct control of the milk check of every dairy farmer in the country?" He demanded.

"Isn't this delegation of power of interest to the dairy farmers of America when they are told that these tariff reductions are recommended by experts and then no one can find out who the experts are? I have spent nearly two years trying to find out, but they tell me that they do not give this information out. Have we become so politically low that a free people cannot find out who makes or recommends decisions of the government?" Murray continued.

He pointed out that "cheese averaged 17.5 cents per pound the seven pre-New Years and only 13.2 cents per pound the seven years of the New Deal." In 1939, he said, further, "after seven years of the New Deal, cheese averaged only 12.8 cents per pound. Isn't this delegation of power of interest to the dairymen of America when, in 1938, cheese averaged only 12.6 cents per pound and the New Deal lowered the tariff by another 20 per cent?" Murray demanded.

Move to Solve Problems of Cut-Over Land

$300,000 Allotted For Rehabilitation Of Northern Farmers

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau Madison—The first tentative step in following out the recommendations made last year by a special committee which studied the problem of rehabilitating Wisconsin's cut-over northland will be taken soon when the farm security administration begins the expenditure of a special $300,000 fund recently allotted by the department of agriculture, H. W. Parisius, state FSA director, said here today.

A big report of the national resources committee published in 1939 concluded that two of the primary problems affecting the economic dislocation in the northern counties were to be found in the fact that too many northern Wisconsin farmers are tilling soils unsuited for agriculture, and that many others have good soils, but in plots too small to furnish a livelihood.

Under the $300,000 allotment recently approved, the FSA will be allowed to operate experimentally in a program of lending to farmers on good lands to enable them to increase their holdings, Parisius revealed.

Program Confined Until this summer the FSA program has been confined to two projects. Most important was the tenant purchase program, through which farm tenants were loaned funds to purchase their own farms.

A secondary operation was the refinancing of distressed farmers, mostly in the northern counties.

However, state FSA officials reported that they soon demonstrated that it was useless to refinance farm mortgages of farmers whose land holdings were too small for profitable operation. The fundamental task, according to Parisius, was to devise means to enable them to clear more land, in sections probably fitted for agriculture.

The experimental allocation will be used for that purpose, and up to 500 farmers in seven northern counties, including Marinette in northeastern Wisconsin, will be aided, according to officials.

Air Stewardess Was Slugged by Unknown Assailant in Plane

Nashville, Tenn.—(AP)—Inspector C. E. Ison of the Civil Aeronautics Authority today questioned blonde Rosemary Griffith, American Airlines stewardess, about the mysterious attack she suffered aboard a sky sleeper while in flight Wednesday night.

Ison and a man who identified himself as R. H. Dennis, a post office inspector, were the first besides Paul Stanley, Nashville sales manager for the line, to discuss the case with the stewardess in her hospital room. A third man who accompanied them declined to give his name.

Miss Griffith told her story to Stanley yesterday. She said she was felled by an unidentified assailant in the women's lounge as the plane neared Nashville. Stanley reported her attacker had demanded a key to the mail compartment and that Miss Griffith swallowed it before losing consciousness.

Normally the luggage and mail compartment is kept locked during flight but it was open when the stewardess was discovered by passengers.

Thomas Cotton, Nashville postal inspector who flew to Los Angeles with the cargo of the plane and participated in examination of the mail to see whether it had been tampered with, said today that as far as he knew the mail had not been impounded.

Farm Market Is Considered for New London Day

Business Men Hear Report on Efforts to Get Airport Approval

New London — A proposal to include a farm market program in the present New London Day plan was introduced at a meeting of the New London Advancement association at Manske's hall last night.

The new plan would allow farmers to bring farm products into the city and sell at a public market. It was pointed out that the revenue received by farmers would provide them with more ready cash for merchandise purchases in local stores and would stimulate attendance and interest. The plan was left open for argument.

A report was heard on the efforts of the airport committee to seek cooperation from government agencies on the proposed federal airport project here. No results have been forthcoming yet.

A social and lunch followed the meeting with M. H. McDonnell, Donald Barlow and L. J. Manske on the entertainment committee.

Bob Nelson pitched for the losers and lost the game in the first inning when he issued five walks, two home runs and a double. The Hashouse players have proved hard hitters and Leon Polaski again was first to clear the sacks with a homer. Len Schultz doubled after another walk, then Jim Mulhane swept the bases with two walks out. Schultz added a triple in the second stanza to push in another run and Watkins made a single count in the fourth.

Today and Tomorrow

BY WALTER LIPPMANN

A Gentleman at Des Moines

WASHINGTON. The incident at Des Moines, when Mr. Willkie rebuked an audience which had booed Secretary Wallace, will permit many to hope that the campaign can still be conducted in a manner which suits the gravity of the times. For regardless of the outcome the campaign will be a national disaster if the partisans treat their opponents as enemies and seek to excommunicate them from the community of honorable and patriotic citizens. Without self-restraint and a certain chivalry in public men the Democratic system of government will crack under the fierce pressure of contemporary events. Thus, one of the indubitable causes of the ruin of France was the savagery with which the politicians attacked one another and intrigued against one another. Not only did the fury of their partisanship render impossible a coherent and effective policy; the manner in which public men assassinated the honor of public men bred a cynicism and contemptuous indifference which devitalized the people.

Since the early days of the republic, there has been in this respect a sad deterioration of public morals. It is true that Washington and Hamilton, Adams and Jefferson were cruelly attacked and foully slandered by many editors and pamphleteers and agitators. But one has only to read their own speeches and letters to see how they held themselves above rancor, how consistently they maintained an elevation of feeling in their public utterances, how faithfully they preserved the courtesies of debate and that magnanimity which alone can dignify partisan conflict.

They were great gentlemen who gave order and unity and faith to the feeble, discordant colonies; and the example of their behavior was perhaps as important an element in their achievements as the wisdom and the courage with which they designed the Constitution and fixed the policies of the young republic.

"Talking Down" To The People Is Unnecessary

It is usually believed by amateurs in politics that a public man cannot hope to be elected unless he talks down to the people. As regards Presidential candidates, at least, these amateur politicians are most certainly wrong. At bottom they are wrong because, as my old colleague, F. P. A. once remarked, the average man is a good deal above the average. The people who do not vote mechanically and as a matter of blind habit, and are, therefore, open to persuasion in a campaign, are quickly aware of it when they are being talked down to. The effect is subtly irritating and repellent. They feel the condescension, they feel the implied reflection on their intelligence and on their character, and they tend to wonder whether the candidate who is addressing them in baby-talk may not be hiding from them the facts of life.

Moreover, as they have common sense, they know quite well that the great political issues are immensely difficult. When they hear the man who is a candidate for the responsibility of dealing with these issues reduce them to catch phrases and to nursery fables about the industrious little bees and the pretty little pigs, they are not impressed by what a human fellow he is; they put up with it, wondering whether he understands the issues and is equal to them. So the candidate who really wishes to impress the people will at least once on every great question speak as a statesman should, stating his position thoroughly, even technically, in a manner to disclose his command of the facts and his grasp of principles. After that he and his supporters can simplify and explain and beat the drum and do the circus. But if the candidate himself never does anything but popularize and vulgarize, the net impression he leaves will be that when he talks down it is because he is already down there.

Won't Be Reassured By Soft, Complacent Talk

It is more than ever necessary in these days that a candidate for the highest office should convince the nation that they are in the presence of some one who is able to lead them, not merely to wait for the Gallup poll and follow. There is bewilderment; the people would like a President who is lucid. There is great anxiety; the people would like a President who is resolute and imperturbable. There is suspicion and division; the people would like a President who is boldly magnanimous and chivalrous. There is vast disorder in human affairs and there are tremendous tasks to be done; the people would like a President who will organize their energies and, thereby, give them that courage and confidence which can be reached these days only as men, ceasing to brood and worry morbidly, are put to work doing efficiently some hard job they believe it is necessary to do.

The amateur politicians as well as the old routiniers of politics misjudge wholly, I think, the mood of the people if they think the voters want to be coddled, ingratulated, and talked down to. The awakened people of this country will no more be reassured by soft, complacent talk than will a man who knows he is sick and is told by a doctor, who is obviously deceiving him, to forget it and not to worry. The remedy for the nervous anxiety which is so general today is an insistence upon the manly virtues, upon the hard, unfrightened virtues, which overcome fear by the simple and ancient remedy of ceasing to be afraid. For fear itself is much worse than the dangers it anticipates apprehensively, and against the contagion of fear in a nation the certain protection is the example of courage—high-souled, disinterested, trans-personal—in public men.

For when the leaders are frightened, soft, untruthful, so meanly ambitious that they stoop to conquer, there is no vision and the people perish.

Clintonville Council Gives Westphal Flushing Contract

Clintonville — A contract for flushing and sprinkling the paved streets of this city until Dec. 1 was awarded to August Westphal by the council at its regular meeting Tuesday evening. Westphal, who has done this work for the last few years, offered to continue the job for the sum of $140 per month. As an alternate bid he offered to sell his equipment to the city if relief labor was to be used. No other bids were received.

Wholesale licenses for the sale of fermented malt beverages were granted to the Gettleman Brewing company and the Capitol Brewing company. Tavern operators' licenses were granted to Louis Fandry, Carl Beckman, Arthur Long, Albert Schultz and Ann Boelter.

Mayor F. A. Spearbraker brought up the matter of constructing four horseshoe courts in Central park, the total cost not to exceed $50. The public property committee was given power to act in this matter.

Conscription of Property Means Rights are Lost Too

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER

New York—Excuse me, friends, but do I understand you to say that if men are to be conscripted for military training or war, then wealth should be conscripted, too?

Because, before I bet on that proposition I want to take another squint at my hand.

Now, as I read the cards I observe that men are conscripted to defend the wealth of a country because the life and freedom of the people are based on the possession of that wealth. And, of course, it sounds handsome to say that the wealth of a nation should belong equally to all the people, but if you will take a look around you will observe that freedom exists only in those countries in which the wealth, or most of it, is privately owned and shifted from one possessor to another in constant toil, trade, competition and speculation.

I don't know why it works out that way, but it does. In Russia, Germany and Italy the wealth belongs entirely to the state, or, in your way of speaking, to all the people, equally, and the result is that no individual, except the few bosses, has any wealth at all or any of the rights that Americans enjoy.

They can't speak out of turn; they can be shot for reading forbidden material or listening to forbidden stations on the air; they have to work where they are put as many hours as they are told; they can't quit one job to seek another or sass the boss or strike or even mention the idea of organizing a union.

And they have to serve in armies and fight in wars, too, even with no prospect of acquiring any wealth of their own if they happen not to be killed.

When the war is over, if they live, back they go to their tasks. The farmer is staked to his farm on a short tether, and, though he may think he owns it, that is only an illusion. Let him fall behind the production figured out for him by the nation and they chase him down the road, and his family with him, and give the farm to someone else who will work harder and better and for a bare living.

Or if he just happens to be in wrong with the local boss he can be chased off down the road or slapped into a concentration camp, where the guards will beat his ears off while the farm is given to someone who happens to be in right with the boss—perhaps the boss' cousin or the father of some dolly that the boss is playing around with.

Government As Employer Just Can't Be Disputed

If he is a white-collar or a hand worker in a plant he can be hoisted out of a job in his home town and sent somewhere "way to hell and gone" in a strange part of the country because they happen to need his kind of talent there.

That is what has to happen in a country where you conscript the wealth as well as the man. It has to happen, and it does happen, because when the government of a nation takes over the wealth it becomes the owner of all the farms and factories as well as the diamond bracelets and the stocks and bonds.

Wealth isn't just stock certificates and saw-bucks. It is the property, and when the government conscripts the property, then eventually the government becomes the only employer in the country, and its orders to the employees are not to be disregarded or argued, as in the free countries.

The government's orders as the employer and the boss are not more orders but law, and you know what happens when you disobey a law of the government, especially in time of national danger. They send for the secret police and give you a quick trial, and you go to the clink if they don't take a notion to shoot you.

So, on reading my hand carefully, I have to bet against your proposition that wealth should be conscripted along with men. If you are going to do that there is no reason to conscript the men, because this country's only reason for doing that is to fight off the very thing that would happen here the minute we decided to conscript wealth.

When Humanitarians Quarrel

Reminiscent of ugly encounters in the drunken negro legislature of post bellum South Carolina was the late clash in the senate between two original New Dealers, Holt of West Virginia and Minton of Indiana.

The bad blood originated some time ago when Holt entered bitter protest against division of the federal swag in his state. It has become increasingly worse as Holt insisted that some scruple against broken promises should be occasionally preserved.

But the Third Termers lost all semblance of patience when Holt invaded their slander copyright by employing that old humbug of a plot by "rich men"—it is always the rich—to underwrite conscription so that they might have an army with which to save investments abroad. Of course these rich were also conspiring for a declaration of war motivated by "war profits." Holt too is after the money-changers in the temple.

Like a mastiff whose hunk of meat has been filched Minton charged to the attack. Wounded pride fighting with rage for mastery, Minton seemed to say: Is there nothing sacred in debate, will there be no recognition of the New Dealer right to employ the plot of the rich men meeting secretly? What is to become of the approaching campaign if renegades fire New Deal ammunition? Hasn't the New Deal a property right in certain forms of slander?

As Minton proceeded his rage blazed into fury. He would teach this college loose-jaw who was running the show. The Holt blood was corrupt. It was cowardly. It always had been. Even in the Civil war, and every war since, it had spewed poison into the air. Holt belonged to a slacker family.

It may be a fine point whether Minton breached senate rules but the meaning of his statement usually precedes tavern brawls though in much more compact form.

Leastways the New Deal has served stinging notice it will fight savagely to preserve its copyright to bring plots out of the bag, plots formed by beady-eyed miscreants to protect dirty money bags. And no rhinoceros will ever charge a camera with more blood-shot eyes than a Humanitarian when a deserter picks up the dagger.

Senator Shipstead Abandons The Farmer-Labor Party

Senator Shipstead of Minnesota has abandoned the Farmer-Labor party and embraced the Republican.

The senator says that the Farmer-Labor party has come under the thumb of "a small group of selfish, greedy and subversive men."

Although Senator Shipstead has served for 18 years as a leader of progressive government he sees the party headed by Mr. Willkie, as the most useful and sturdy vehicle for travel upon his selected course.

The judgment of a seasoned veteran like Shipstead is not to be lightly ignored. It corroborates the political murders in Minnesota. It sustains the conclusions formed when gangland made the capital of the Farmer-Labor party its capital, made that party's leaders and protectors, its leaders and protectors, and rifled banks, pulled kidnappings, and nurtured extortion as a regular day by day business.

Eternal vigilance, which is the price of liberty, is also the only means of selecting our political parties. Soft words, big promises, lush handouts, all these are the common weapons of candidates of a certain character. But the sound judgment of a people, their discernment, their correct appraisal when foolish promises are made or a record of broken words is exposed, amounts to their best, and perhaps their only protection.

Prohibition Comes With War

The Anti-Saloon League has aroused itself from a long sleep. The Women's Christian Temperance Union is preparing for the battle.

Both of these organizations are committed to prohibition, and they know it is time to strike when the rattle of musketry and the smell of gun powder come down the wind.

People habitually say that when a nation goes to war high idealism or lofty emotionalism grips it in an iron vise.

It is a rather pretty way of saying that the war fever topples judgment. And yet what nation ever fought a war and kept its head? Perhaps the only way a people can rise to the necessarily delirious heights to successfully wage war is to pass prohibition and convince themselves it and other similar reforms are going to really last.

The Four Horsemen which have typified war's brutality and madness are really only the leaders of a vast cavalry.

Behind them troop along in the dust a woe-begotten and devilish bunch of steeds.

One of these is prohibition. And it probably is the first to get off the ground after the Big Four rise and stretch their mud-caked limbs.

The Habsburgs Come to America

One of the greatest and oldest royal families of Europe is now in America, the former Empress of Austria-Hungary with seven of her eight children.

For 600 years this family has carved out the destiny of a large share of the European continent. But since 1918 it has been fleeing from one disaster to another, probably a just infliction upon it for the numerous times it tossed away the opportunity of building a Europe for peace as it drew the sword from its bloody scabbard.

It is a strange commentary upon fate and fortune that this Austrian line is now in America, peopled by so many from its formerly great empire who were driven here by intolerable conditions at home.

Only 28 years ago this empress, Zita-Marie, a princess in the Bourbon line of Parma, was married to a scion of the royal, ancient and immensely proud House of Habsburg. Shortly an arch-duke, and direct heir to the throne, was slain at Sarajevo. The mangy nags of war were unloosed over this episode as though the assassination of royalty were anything new or this aristocrat's blood was worth that of ten million other humans. And shortly, too, the aged emperor died in Vienna and Otto and Zita-Marie were upon their thrones.

But now the years move swiftly and with a constant touch of malevolence. Peace brings upheavals, fiery revolution stalks the streets. The royal pair flee into exile. There are four years in poverty on the island of Madeira. The emperor dies in neglect. The determined mother with her brood go to Spain. But the scorching flame of Revolution reaches them there, too, and they are driven by the Spanish civil war into Belgium. The Germans who have taken their Austria now take their Belgium.

And here they are in America, the land to which the misrule of their sires sent so many immigrants mourning over their lost homeland even as royalty may now mourn theirs.

Misery loves company and makes the whole world kin.

The Last of the Freebooters

The approaching trial of Howard C. Hopson, graduate of the University of Wisconsin, may put him far in the lead of Insull for utility mismanagement.

Hopson is not only accused of mulcting the operating utilities for the benefit of his holding company but of many distinct acts of petty thievery that, if established by the evidence, puts him in the class with any nickel-filching pick-pocket.

The government charges him with paying with company checks his own bills for food, groceries, cigars, liquors, theatres and even medicines, cameras and radios. The public can only hope that it will not be denied, as it was in Insull's case, the conviction that proof of these acts will support and it should not be nullified by a jury's bewilderment or perversity over that stale defense, "My intentions were good, I had no purpose to do wrong."

It is not improbable that Hopson's trial is being saved for the election. But if the people cannot differentiate between a crooked utility magnate and the honest majority neither can they tell the difference between a thieving farmer and one who obeys the law, a worker who gives 100 cents on the dollar and a chiseling racketeer.

Nonetheless, outlawing the holding utility system of the past which permitted Hopsons and Insulls, is due to the early days of the present administration when thirst for power, internationalism, and other weaknesses did not direct its course.

A Verse for Today

By Anne Campbell

HEALING

The weight of the world's suffering oppressed me,
But down a wooded path I wandered far,
A woodchuck signalled and a squirrel addressed me,
And walking home, I traveled with a star.

The moonlit waves against the shore were speaking,
As they have spoken for a thousand years.
The treetops held the magic I was seeking,
The clear sky was an answer to my fears.

The order of the night and its calm splendor
Strengthened a spirit long unsatisfied.
The peace of endless time was in the tender
And constant light upon the countryside.

The DAILY WASHINGTON MERRY GO ROUND

BY DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN
Washington—How much American isolation means to Hitler and how worried he is over the drift toward selling United States destroyers to Great Britain has been illustrated by several factors recently.

One is the steady stream of statements and press interviews by Nazi leaders reminding the United States that she has no quarrel with Europe, and that Hitler has no intention of coming to the Western Hemisphere.

Positive proof that these are intended entirely for American consumption came the other day when Adolf Hitler sent for Hearst newsman, veteran Karl von Weigand, and gave him an exclusive interview, saying that he had no intention of going to South America.

King Features, which distribute von Weigand's writings, immediately telegraphed to the leading papers of Latin America, offering to sell them the interview. A large number of the editors ordered it—when suddenly King Features discovered that Hitler had been there ahead of them. The German consuls and embassies in Latin America had distributed the speech free of charge and cable tolls paid to all newspapers.

MISSING FARM LEADER
One of the chief subjects discussed at the GOP farm pow-wow in Des Moines was the McNary-Hagen bill, twice passed by congress and vetoed by Coolidge and Hoover.

But the news dispatches reporting this fact contained no mention of Senator Charles McNary, chief author of the famous measure and the running mate selected by Wendell Willkie for the specific purpose of wooing agricultural votes. Reason nothing was said about McNary at the conference was because he wasn't there.

Behind this is an interesting story. The prime movers of the meeting, among them Iowa's Governor George Wilson, either forgot or purposely did not invite McNary. At any rate he was not asked to come—until Willkie personally telephoned McNary two days before the conference.

This last-minute thought was inspired by Representative Frank Horton of Wyo., Willkie's personal friend. Horton discovered that no invitation had been extended to McNary by the Wilson group and hastily telephoned the presidential candidate at Colorado Springs. Willkie, in turn, immediately telephoned McNary and asked him to come.

However, the senate GOP floor leader declined because of the pressure of legislative duties. He explained that the bill calling the national guard into active service was coming up Monday and he could not leave Washington.

Note—McNary's acceptance speech, like Willkie's, will not be more than one half hour's duration. One of the chief subjects of the address will be the water power issue, on which McNary has a strong public ownership record.

Speaking of nepotism, it is interesting to note that on occasion, the White House secretariat is not above the oldest of political practices—squeezing patronage for members of the family.

Nepotist No. 1 is William H. McReynolds, one of the gentlemen with a "passion for anonymity," who was promoted through civil service to hold one of the most coveted jobs in Washington, secretary to the president. He is also secretary of the new national defense council.

McReynolds is supposed to handle personnel matters, that is to place the best people in the right jobs. However, he is not averse to placing members of his own family, and his own daughter has just been placed in an excellent personnel job in the national defense council. She is Mrs. Margaret Holmead, and she is supposed to handle job applications to the council.

Applicants complain that they can get no report on what happens to their applications. In fact congressmen do not have much better luck.

Note—Mrs. Holmead's father gets a salary of $10,000 at the White House. All government salaries are required to be a matter of public record, but Robert Horton, press relations officer of the council, refused to divulge her stipend, referring inquiry to the assistant secretary of the council, Sidney Sherwood. Mr. Sherwood works for Mr. McReynolds. He stated, "No public good can come from disclosing Mrs. Holmead's salary."

CAPITAL CHAFF

The man expected to be next Japanese Ambassador to the United States is Y. Ayukawa, sometimes called the Ivar Krueger of Japan. He once worked in a steel mill in the United States and is now head of the Manchurian Development corporation. His appointment would make him the first Japanese businessman in years who has served here as ambassador. Most previous envoys have been career men. . . . Lost in the welter of international and political news is the Louisiana fight to oust the remnants of the Huey Long machine. One congressional campaign which Washington is watching is that staged by young Jimmy Aswell against Dr. George Long, one of Huey's brothers, and against Congressman A. Leonard Allen. Aswell is the son of the late congressman. He left a well-paid newspaper job to help clean up Hueyism.

POLITICAL-GO-ROUND

Despite his poke at the president on the compulsory training issue, ex-War Secretary Harry Woodring will not join the pro-Willkie bolters. The little Kansan has secret political ambitions and with his eye on the future will remain regular. . . . Senator William King, veteran Utah anti-New Deal Democrat, is having a hard battle to hold his seat. He is being opposed for renomination by Delbert Draper, prominent Salt Lake City lawyer, and Representative Abe Murdock, leader of the New Deal contingent on Capitol Hill. . . . Dr. Francis Townsend, czar of the old-age pension movement, is branching out into a new line. He has launched "a huge nationwide drive to break up and destroy all Fifth Column activities within the United States," according to his formal announcement. Just how he will accomplish this was not disclosed.

Down in Argentina, they are dumping corn in big piles and burning it. This means that after a long period of prosperity, Argentina has been driven to the desperate recourse of destroying agricultural surpluses, just as Brazil burned her coffee and this country plowed under its corn.

Argentina has a bumper corn crop this year, and no place to sell it. The bottom has fallen out of the price, so much that small quantities of Argentine corn entered California over a 25-cent-a-bushel tariff.

Argentina is traditionally the most prosperous and most secure of all the Latin American countries. She is the only one whose credit is sound enough to make her bonds wanted in the United States.

But more than any of the 19 other Latin American countries, she depends upon the European market, which is now cut off.

Before the winter is over, there will be tremendous pressure in Argentina to dispose of surpluses to a starving Europe—probably through Hitler. This will create a conflict with Britain—if that country is still able to impose a blockade. And also it will make for tougher Argentine relations with the United States, for Henry Wallace also is trying to get rid of surplus corn.

A Bystander In Washington

BY JACK STINNETT

Washington—Answering the mail orders:

J. L. T. Columbus, Ohio — You are a little mixed on your dates. Henry A. Wallace voted for Al Smith in 1928 and for President Roosevelt in 1932 but it was not until 1936 that he became a registered Democrat. I don't know why some writers refer to him as a Republican until 1932, unless because it was not until the birth of the New Deal that he stepped into the national political picture. If that's the reason, the date should be 1933, for not until then did he come to Washington.

Mrs. R. M., Reading, Pa. — Yes I did notice at the Chicago convention that a lot of delegates cast their votes for Franklin D. RUSEvelt. I noticed also that most of those who used that pronunciation were from down east. It was probably the Dutch touch. Then there were those several exuberant delegates who shouted their votes for Franklin De-LAY-no Roosevelt. I'll bet the DEL-uh-no family, which is quite prominent in its own right, got bored with that. Maybe the real reason FDR wants a third term is that he feels he'd better stick in the White House until the country learns to pronounce his name.

M. L. B., Cincinnati, Ohio — You are dead right. The vote (franchise) for the District of Columbia is up against a lot of trouble. When I reported recently that something probably would be done about it, I merely meant that the thing was coming to a head. From this distance, there's no telling what may happen, although some house and senate leaders have announced for it. The matter has been up before . . . and defeated. If you must have the truth, one of the biggest bones of contention is the big negro vote here (about 40 per cent).

G. K. D., Evanston, Ill. — Probably before this can get into type, there will be an answer to your question and someone will have been named to the position of James A. Farley. But here and now I can tell you there is a lot of talk that Paul V. McNutt not only will become national chairman of the Democratic party but Postmaster General as well. About the only question is whether FDR has this or something better in mind for McNutt. The point is—what does McNutt want? At this reporting, he has refused to say.

J. F. K., Breckenridge, Tex. — You got me all wrong, Mr. K., but the fault is mine, and I hope to write soon explaining what has been done about the compulsory military training bill. Very likely the bill will come out in entirely different form than the one being shaped up in committee. I would be surprised if it didn't result in the biggest floor fight during the national defense drive.

O. G., Pawnee, Okla. — I trust by now you have your book on letter writing. By the way, Mr. James F. Grady's campaign (if you could call it that) to make the government departments letter-writing conscious has gained such impetus that the poor man is sort of quadruple-drafted for a third term. In other words, the various federal agencies have discovered that there are few things more important than saying it right when you say it in print. . . . something that we writing Johnnies have told them a long time ago. Often, there is no more than an adjective between a libel suit and friendly relations.

Now Frey stands midway in an investigation of the conservation department, while no one knows whether it is to be continued or dropped, or whether the charges so far made will be acted upon or ignored.

With the conservation department investigation just begun, Frey took a detour and delved into the affairs of the beverage tax division. Now there lies on his desk another report, demanding the dismissal of department officials over whom Heil or Frey have no control whatever. Let no one assume that Glenn Frank is going to take the Republican nomination for senator hands down. While the Frank candidacy doubtless disconcerted some of the other bidders, the only visible effect it has had is to cause other candidates to redouble their efforts.

A good example is Fred Clausen, who was first in the race. Clausen might be discouraged by some of the attitudes he has encountered among Republican leaders lately, the fear that his nomination on a ticket with already disgraced Heil and Willkie would hurt the Republican party. One Republican spokesman has even gone so far as to say that it would wreck the Republicans' chances this year, and that statement has been circulated widely throughout the state.

But on Clausen the only effect it has had is to encourage him to buckle down to more determined organization and campaigning work. A Republican traveler recently reported that "you have to use a crowbar to wade through Clausen literature at even the small town Republican meetings."

If the analysis of sage and veteran Republican observers is of any value, Clausen is the man for Frank to beat.

Note: Progressives, anxious to keynote their campaign upon the domination of the Republican party by big businessmen, are crossing their fingers and praying for Clausen's nomination.

I see the British parliament is more or less stirred up over the exact duties of Noel Coward in the United States and the facts about Gracie Fields. I don't know much about Gracie, but Noel's about the most useful and entertaining ambassador the British could have anywhere. Give him a piano and he'll get those fifty destroyers from us in no time.

Not only that, but he has some jokes and stories that almost any congressman would take in exchange for a first class battleship.

German scientists can speed up the growth of trees, says a news report from Muenchenberg, Germany. It's done with ultra-violet rays and x-rays. The Germans say they are growing poplars two years, then cutting them for manufacture of cellulose.

Under the CAPITOL DOME

BY JOHN WYNGAARD

Madison—Sometimes the thoughtful observer of the state capital scene finds himself wondering about the exact purpose of one of the Heil administration's most widely publicized and most expensive creations, the Frey research bureau.

For months Frey has kept the capitol in a furore with charges and investigations, but to date no concrete results can be shown. He files reports with his chief, Governor Heil, but they are never heard of again. He makes recommendations, but Heil doesn't follow them, or at least he has shown no inclination to do so thus far.

Yet Frey continues to be the governor's closest companion. They travel together during weekends, they vacation together, they take their meals together daily.

Frey spends months and thousands of dollars in his investigation of the state highway commission, made charges which must remain a cloud on that department until they are either formally withdrawn or disclosed. Yet the governor never publicly discussed that report, or disclosed its contents. For all practical purposes it has been forgotten. It is known that Frey filed reports of other investigations with Heil, and that they contain recommendations. Some of them are months old. Yet the governor refuses to talk about them. Indeed, from his replies to reporters questions, it could be concluded that he has not yet read them.

Now Frey stands midway in an investigation of the conservation department, while no one knows whether it is to be continued or dropped, or whether the charges so far made will be acted upon or ignored.

With the conservation department investigation just begun, Frey took a detour and delved into the affairs of the beverage tax division. Now there lies on his desk another report, demanding the dismissal of department officials over whom Heil or Frey have no control whatever.

Personal Health Talks

A LITTLE MORE ASEPSIS

A young woman who wears a uniform and makes a noise like a nurse, the obviously she has not had the education and training of a nurse, is employed as a nurse in a nose and throat specialist's office. She typifies a humbug and a scandal perpetrated on the public by a great many physicians, specialists and dental practitioners. Perhaps the best way to protect the public is by enlightenment. That is the purpose of this column in all circumstances.

This young woman suffered one "cold" after another, as her busy employer called it. Thru most of these attacks she managed to remain at work. Part of her work was applying medications to the throats of certain patients, under the specialist's direction. Oddly enough, when the young woman suffered an attack rather more severe than usual she consulted her family physician.

The family doctor donned his mask and headlamp and carefully examined the patient's throat. He found some suspicious spots, took a culture, discovered she had streptococcus throat—septic sore throat. That's as far as we need go with the case so far as the young woman is concerned. But please go back to the first line of this paragraph and underscore the first six words: "The family doctor donned his mask." That is the picture to associate in your mind with the word "asepsis."

The young woman expressed interest in the doctor's mask. (It was a home made one, a piece of washed X-ray film fastened to headband by snap fasteners, covering face, not interfering with ventilation and vision.) She was astonished when the doctor said he always wore his mask when examining mouth, nose, throat or chest.

"You should wear a mask when you are giving treatments in the office," the doctor said.

"We can't"—patients who do not understand would resent it," said the office girl, reflecting the idea of her employer.

Perhaps patients who go directly to "specialists" in the smug belief that a "specialist" knows more or has greater skill than an "ordinary doctor," would resent such aseptic technique, but intelligent laymen nowadays understand that is for their own protection as well as for the protection of the doctor or nurse. Does anybody resent the masks worn by all hands in the operating room?

If you can't make a neat mask in the manner suggested, the more familiar mask of surgical gauze (cheesecloth) will serve as effectively if not as comfortably or as becomingly—it must be made of not less than ten layers of gauze or washed cheesecloth having not less than 32 threads to the inch mesh, about 6 by 8 inches, with tapes sewed on each corner to tie over ears and back of neck to hold the mask in place.

Every one should use such a mask when ill of any respiratory infection or when taking care of or within conversational range of any one who has signs or symptoms of such infection.

Smokestack Extension On Courthouse Will Be Completed Soon

Post-Crescent Oshkosh Bureau Oshkosh—A 15-foot extension on the courthouse smokestack which was authorized recently by the Winnebago county board will be completed within the next few weeks, according to Paul Neubauer, sheriff.

The discovery that soot and fly ash were being drawn into the county jail through the ventilation system because the stack was not of sufficient height to permit the wind to carry the smoke away caused the county board to authorize the extension at its last meeting.

Commenting on a critical report released recently by the state welfare department on Wisconsin jails, Sheriff Neubauer said that contrary to the report, the air ducts in the Winnebago county jail are not "plugged with dirt" as charged. He explained that smoke had been drawn into the jail because of the low smokestack and had covered the air ducts with a thin layer of soot, but that the ducts were not in any way "plugged" nor was the substance "dirt."

Board Sets Up School Zones

Population Changes Prompt Revival of Rules for Attendance

Menasha—School zones for attendance at the public grade schools have been re-established by the board of education. The zoning rule was established several years ago but has not been enforced recently. However, changes in the population in various districts have made it necessary to enforce attendance at designated schools this fall.

Because of the growth in population of the area near Butte des Morts school the enrollment in certain grades has been too large. On the other hand, in the same grades in the Nicolet and Jefferson schools the enrollment has been small. B. Younger, superintendent of schools, explained.

Consequently certain grades have a much larger number of pupils under one teacher than in the same grade in other schools. Of course, this has resulted in children getting less individual help and attention from the teacher in one school than in another. In order to give all children equal educational opportunity and to equalize the teaching load in the elementary schools the board of education has re-established the various zones.

All school children in grades one to six inclusive living east of the center line of Racine street on the mainland will attend Jefferson school.

All children in the same grade living west of the center line of Racine street and north of all of Main and Kaukauna streets will attend Butte des Morts school.

All school children living on both sides of Main and Kaukauna streets and south of those streets or on the island will attend Nicolet school.

The zoning rules do not apply to kindergarten children. Choice of school there is optional.

Seek Land for County Airport

Special Committee to Investigate Cost of 250 Additional Acres

Post-Crescent Oshkosh Bureau Oshkosh—An additional 250 acres will be necessary before the site occupied by the Oshkosh Airport, Inc., will meet the requirements for a Class C municipal airport, the Winnebago county aviation committee has announced following conferences with a representative of the civil aeronautics commission.

William B. Todd, Jr., district airport engineer for the civil aeronautics commission, earlier this week advised the committee that additional land would have to be purchased before 3,500-foot runways, which Class C airport rating requires, could be built on the site of the Oshkosh Airport, Inc.

Having made a tour of inspection to determine whether 250 acres would enable adequate runways to be constructed to meet requirements, the committee appointed a special committee to make a land purchasing tour of adjoining farms and ascertain what prices owners would ask for this land. The committee decided that land west and south of the airport would be best suited.

Henry Schultz, Neenah, aviation committee chairman and a member of the special committee, stated that owners of the Pelton, Thoma, Kohls, Sivert, Wraga and Cowan properties which adjoin the airport are to be contacted this week about possible sale of their lands.

The aviation committee is expected to submit its report to the Winnebago county board meeting Aug. 13.

U. S. Mines in For It if Nazis Are Victorious

Babson Says Silver Is in Especially Vulnerable Position

BY ROGER BABSON

Denver, Colo.—If Germany wins the war, America's gigantic mining industry is in for a rough ride. The real prosperity of our mines has depended on foreign markets. We cannot begin to consume as much as our huge mines can produce. The last 10 years have been tough enough, but with Germany out "to get" us in world markets, there is hard sledding ahead for United States copper, zinc, and lead producers, while the silver people are in an even tougher spot.

Babson

This is the consensus of opinion among people with whom I have talked here in the mining country. It explains the unenthusiastic following for metal and mining securities in recent weeks. People are afraid that prices are going to even lower levels than at present despite our defense program. Stocks of the leading non-ferrous metals are very heavy. Production is still outstripping consumption and prices of metals have been among the weakest of commodities since the war boom blew up in Wall street last September. Worries over the future price trend of the American metals are the basis for weakness in the price of metal stocks.

Silver is in an especially vulnerable position. We are still buying foreign silver at the world price and are purchasing millions of dollars worth of the domestic white metal at about twice the world price. The treasury has tons and tons of silver on hand—a big enough supply to cover our industrial uses for years ahead. The silver purchase program of the government is uneconomic and unsound. There is no more reason why the government should pay a fixed price far above the world price, for silver than for any other United States commodity—wheat, apples, aluminum, or oil.

With the pressure on Congress to cut out all unnecessary expenses this silver-purchase program will be under fire. Certainly, we ought to stop buying foreign silver, which has been helping to finance foreign governments without mutual benefit to us. The whole silver-buying idea has been one grand grab, one wild scheme which has cost the taxpayers $1,000,000,000 since early 1934! With a $14,000,000,000 defense program to finance, we cannot afford to continue to ladle out that kind of money to any group or to any minority—no matter how powerful their influence. When the Treasury stops paying 71 cents an ounce for silver, many a mine out in this country will have to fold up.

That is the darkest side of the picture. There's another side—and a brighter one. Copper, zinc, and lead are all vital raw materials for industries. In spite of the fact that new plastics are invading their field there is a big demand for these metals when business is good in the United States. The demand is biggest when the heavy industries are booming. America is embarking on the biggest defense program in history. Few people yet realize the tremendous supplies of metals that will be used in this armament program. Hence, even if our export markets are cut off, our defense program will, for the next few years, take up much of the slack in the case of many metals.

Probably the most important long-term effect on the American metal business is "ersatz." Plastic substitutes are increasing by leaps and bounds. Hundreds of articles which only five years ago were made from metal, today come from chemical substitutes. There is no question but that these new plastics—which pop out of the laboratory at a surprising rate—will eventually raise havoc with the metals business. Some of these plastics are cheaper to pro-

Joseph Schindlers Will be Honored at Golden Wedding

Neenah—Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Schindler, route 1, will be guests of honor at a family dinner at their home Sunday afternoon and from 2 o'clock to 5 o'clock will receive the congratulations of their friends in an open house as they observe their golden wedding anniversary. It will be 50 years ago Wednesday, Aug. 14, that Joseph J. Schindler, Appleton, took Miss Kate Williams of Neenah as his bride. The couple lived in Menasha on the old Schindler homestead for about six years, moving then to a farm near Kimberly where they resided for 23 years. Eighteen years ago, the Schindlers purchased the old Williams homestead on County Trunk G from Mrs. Schindler's oldest brother and they have made their home there for the last 18 years.

Military Experts Revise Opinions of Polish Army

BY CHARLES FOLTZ

Bern, Switzerland.—A lot of high-powered military experts, attached to Swiss legations as the military attaches of foreign powers, and some of the Swiss, too, have revised their opinion of Poland's army.

Three things contributed to the new turn of opinion. First was the new realization of the power of Germany's war machine and its strength in the air.

Second was the way France cracked up along with Belgium, Holland and the low countries in 38 days of warfare. Poland alone lasted four weeks.

Third were the poles themselves—even in internment. On the night from the 19th to the 20th of last June alone some 28,000 troops crossed into Switzerland in duce, easier to handle, shock-proof against abuse. I do not mean to imply that I believe that metals will be entirely—or even largely—replaced, but plastics will make inroads.

Investor's Chances 50-50 From an investment standpoint, metal securities have one big asset: They are an excellent inflation hedge. The present congress will have appropriated $20,000,000,000 before it adjourns. The national debt may cross $50,000,000,000 in a year or two more. All lessons from past history teach us that this means inflation. If so, metal prices could soar and prices of metal securities could zoom. On the other hand, we have gone so far along the Regimental Road that the government may establish top prices for raw materials, may turn us back toward deflation. Furthermore, the threat of a German-controlled Europe will continue to hang over the metal securities as long as the war continues.

Summing up, I find that mines and mine investors are not the most optimistic people with whom I have talked on this trip. On the other hand, they are not so discouraged over the outlook as some importers, shipping agents, office-equipment makers, and others who have been practically put out of business by the turn of world events. My observation is that they feel that there is a 50-50 chance for the metal markets to secure substantial gains or to continue in the doldrums. (Copyright, 1940)

Claims Excess Profits Tax Is Too Complicated

Lawrence Proposes That Corporation Income Tax be Used

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington — The administration and congress are about to perform a surgical operation on the national economic system primarily in the interest of national defense, but the same objective — high tax receipts — can be attained with much less disorganization to the business system. This view is being presented to members of congress who are beginning to consider the enactment of excess profits tax legislation.

America's experience with the last excess profits tax law was disastrous. For nearly 20 years after 1921 the treasury and many of the principal taxpayers of the country were involved in expensive lawsuits in an endeavor to discover an equitable way of imposing taxes as between competitors or as between businesses of the same size and different capitalization.

Inasmuch as the treasury says it expects this year only $300,000,000 from the excess profits legislation, it can accomplish that objective by increasing the corporation tax from 19 per cent about 3.8 per cent more and thus get an equal amount of revenue. Likewise, if it is desired to raise more revenue in subsequent years, the same principle of taxation can be used to get higher amounts, going up to 25 per cent or higher as the need requires.

The corporation income tax falls ratably on everybody and is a simple tax to administer and to understand. For next year the treasury is said to need about $700,000,000 from the excess profits tax, but it could get this by a small increase in the corporation tax and by the addition of a flat 10 per cent surtax. This would do away with the numerous accounting difficulties which surround an excess profits tax and every business would know instantly how to compute its tax expense.

Deflationary Cycle The year 1939 has brought in about $1,500,000,000 from the corporation taxes, and there is a chance of a deflationary cycle in certain lines of business if the excess profits tax applies to them. The easiest way to overcome such difficulties is to maintain the same system of taxation as has been in existence, but to apply higher rates.

There is supposed to be some political magic in the words "excess profits" taxes, but the grief brought on by that sort of legislation in the past will harass the politicians far more when the new tax is really applied. It may have been forgotten by some of the legislators, but the burdens of the last excess profits tax were the more easily borne because they were imposed at a time when America had just gone through a period of fat years whereas today America has been struggling through several lean years, reserves being pretty well exhausted among many businesses.

The surtax of 10 per cent above the increased corporation tax can just as well be characterized as an "excess profits tax" if classification is necessary, but to re-enact the crazy-quilt system which was imposed in the last war and then hastily repealed after it had done its damage would merely mean to subject American capital structure to unnecessary hazards at this time.

Consolidated Returns

One of the collateral questions, for instance, that arises under an excess profits tax laws of the type of 20 years ago is what to do about "consolidated returns"—the term under which affiliated or subsidiary companies used to be permitted to make a single tax return. At present consolidated tax returns are forbidden, but if an excess profits tax law is enacted, it will be impossible for many of these subsidiary companies to carry on. Some of them are obliged to maintain a separate corporate existence from the parent company on account of conflicting state laws. The last excess profits tax law permitted consolidated returns and unless this is done it will produce hardships amounting to liquidation in some cases and curtailed operations in others.

If it were not for the war, there would not be under consideration at this time any proposals to revamp the tax system and certainly if there is to be a tax reform of a fundamental nature it requires far more time than congress is able to give to the subject this summer. Since the object is to prevent "unjust enrichment" on national defense projects, the imposition of a higher corporation tax and a flat surtax would take care of such cases and the individual income taxes which already run to high brackets would bring the treasury additional revenue from individual dividends.

This is not the time for a major operation on the tax system, but a time to keep industry going at top speed and yet to collect larger tax receipts. Both can be accomplished by means of high corporation taxes. Most business men doubtless would prefer to see higher rates applied to a taxing system with which they are familiar than to attempt to wrestle with a new

Girl Bicyclist Hurt in Neenah Collision

Menasha — Geraldine Moore, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Tracy Moore, 387 Winnebago avenue, suffered a fractured collar bone when the bicycle she was riding and a car driven by Theodore Lamers, Little Chute, collided Thursday afternoon on Third street.

The girl also received lacerations of the scalp and multiple bruises on the right leg and arm. She is confined to her home. The accident occurred when Lamers was driving west on Third street and made a left turn into a driveway and the girl was riding east on Third street. The bicycle was smashed.

system imposed on top of an old one.

The loss in business momentum under a drastic change in method will probably be larger by far than the amount the treasury could get from 1940 returns. A simple increase now based on 1940 earnings and a higher rate for 1939 would yield the treasury much more revenue than it could possibly get under an excess profits tax system such as was tried with such destructive results 20 years ago.

Fails to Pay Fine, Must Serve Sentence

Menasha—Ervin Metoxin, 4034 Water street, was committed to Winnebago county jail by Municipal Judge S. J. Luchsinger this morning when his probation was revoked, according to Police Chief Alex Slomski. Metoxin was arrested by Winnebago county highway police last September and pleaded guilty of drunken driving. He was sentenced to pay a fine of $100 and costs with an alternate of 90 days in jail. He was given probation until today and was supposed to pay $7 a week on his fine. He paid only $25 during the period and will have to serve one-fourth less than 90 days. Metoxin was taken to Oshkosh by Police Chief Alex Slomski.

Beauty and You

TRAVEL TIPS FOR BEAUTY—This travelling beauty is giving herself a scented friction rub after a sponge bath. Note the sanitary washcloth in her hand.

Did you ever see a celebrated beauty as you would if you had beauty arrive at a train or plane terminal after a tiring cross-country trip? Spick and span and breath-taking, she looks as if she just stepped out of her private dressing room instead of a confining compartment. How did she manage?

Well, stars and other beauties who have learned that it pays to look their loveliest always, have developed a travel technique. Their beauty aids go with them wherever they go and if the space is confining they pack smaller quantities, but no necessary grooming aid is left behind. When they shop a cosmetic counter they pounce on any likely travel aid.

Eliminating travel traces is the big problem and nothing is more annoying than toting around a damp washcloth. So beauties carry those new compressed washcloths which expand in water to a fluffy, hygienic square which may be discarded after it has served its purpose. Ten are packed in a miniature case which takes up little space.

Carry Own Soap
Water changes in degrees of softness according to climate and location. Thus only a super-fatted soap will lather freely in all waters. Liquid soaps on planes and trains, and many soap bars for guests in hotels are too alkaline for face washing. Your own bar may be carried in a little case, or you can cut a bar in half and put that in a smaller case.

In Place of a Shower
Though modern conveniences for traveling are numerous it is still impossible to take a shower bath in plane or train. A sponge bath, yes, but no shower. How refreshing it is to have a bottle of bath friction to use after a sponge bath. It is stimulating and gives off a nice fresh odor. Perhaps this habit was inspired by ladies of old who used to travel with a tiny bottle of pine essence, or toilet water, which they dabbed on their foreheads and wrists during long, tedious travel by horse and coach.

If compartment odors get you, sprinkle your pillow with a bit of cologne or floral perfume. That encourages sweet dreams so you will emerge the next day looking rested.

Clean Puffs
If you have traveled at all you know how quickly a compact powder puff can become soiled, so carry several fresh puffs with you for compact use and box use. They crush into any nook and your complexion will get sanitary care as you roam.

Of course you will take your usual creams, make-up and make-up tools, several pairs of fresh gloves, curlers, and mouth hygiene aids. There is no reason at all why you cannot step off a conveyance looking as ravishing as when you

HOW TO SEAT LARGE FAMILIES

Among the not easily solved problems are those concerning double families at double weddings. The seating of the two bridegroom's mothers has been as perplexing to scores of brides as it is to the sender of this question: "At a double wedding of sisters, how is it decided which one of the grooms is to be given the best seats in the front on the right of the center aisle? Are enough rows left behind this first family for their relatives and friends, and then the rest of this side of the church given to the second groom's family and their relatives and friends? Or how is this arranged?"

As already noted, this is not a definitely settled question. Usually, however, the family of the older sister's fiancée is given the first pew, also the third, fifth, seventh, and so on. The future family of the younger sister is given the second pew, and also the fourth, sixth, eighth, and so on. If one family is much bigger than the other and their combined number (almost certainly) bigger than that of the bride's family, then as many pews as may be necessary to seat the three families are reserved on both sides of the aisle. Those not given reserved place cards for the first few pews are seated in the best vacant seats on either side in the order of their arrival.

The Wedding Invitations
Dear Mrs. Post: Since our parents died, my brother and I have made our home with two maiden aunts. My brother is two years younger than I, but past twenty-one. I am having a church wedding soon, and a small reception in my aunt's house but the expense of both are being shared by my brother and me. My brother is giving me away at the wedding, and I am wondering whether his name may appear on the wedding invitations, or whether my aunt's names should be used.

Answer: Since your brother is your nearest relative and head of your family, it is proper that his name be the one to appear at the head of the invitation. Also, although it sounds very material to bring money into the question, the fact that he is sharing the expenses with you is none the less an addition to his honor.

Mr. Culbertson will discuss this hand in tomorrow's column.

Gave Away Position of Key Cards

BY ELY CULBERTSON

"Dear Mr. Culbertson: The greatest thrill of my bridge career occurred on a recent evening. You know the kind of player that gloats every time an opponent's finesse goes wrong; who usually waits until the dummy is spread and then says mournfully, but still gloatingly, 'I knew I should have doubled.' What he means, of course, is that he finds himself sitting over a king with an A-Q, or some similar situation. He wasn't brave enough during the bidding to double on the hope that that very condition would be present, but now that he is sitting pretty, he starts exuding smugness. Well, I fixed that kind of bird good and proper! This was the deal:

"The bidding:
North East South West
1 no trump Pass 4 spades Pass

"I was South, the declarer. West opened the heart Jack. I covered with the queen. East played the ace and no sooner had I followed suit than he began to chuckle in a particularly offensive sort of way. Grinning at his partner, he said, 'You can relax.'

"Meaning what?" I demanded.
"Meaning that you'll have to be Houdini to make this hand," he snickered.

"Well, I looked the hand over and it immediately became clear that there was only one possible condition which would make East so doggone complacent. That was that he held all three missing trumps. I didn't say anything, but started to pray that certain other conditions were present, also.

"East airily returned the diamond Jack. The King won and I cashed the club ace, disregarding my own king, then ruffed a club. A diamond lead to the ace and another club ruff followed. I then led a heart and finessed dummy's nine, not a far-fetched play in view of West's opening lead. A diamond ruff reduced me to four trumps and I then entered dummy with the heart king, to ruff the last club and bring myself down to three trumps.

"About this time I started to chuckle! As you can see, I now was home. I led the spade ten and, when West showed out, as per expectations, I didn't even quiver. As for East, it was a pleasure to see the peculiar shade of green he had turned. Of course, there was nothing he could do about it. He had to win with the queen or jack of spades and then make me a present of the spade king. His 'sure' three trump tricks had unaccountably turned into two tricks.

"I don't mind admitting that my partner and I then gave East a real lesson in gloating. Even West was with us as he asked his partner: 'I guess I'd better stop my relaxing, hadn't I?' L. F. J., Chicago."

The moral is that a player should either do no gloating, particularly of the premature variety, or should choose opponents who lack the skill to turn such a gloat to their own advantage.

What Time To Arrive

Dear Mrs. Post: When inviting people to lunch or dinner, is the time given that for dinner actually, or that at which cocktails will be served? Or does an invitation saying dinner at half past seven o'clock mean that guests are supposed to come earlier if they want a cocktail?

Answer: You are expected to arrive from two to five minutes after the hour for which you were invited. Those who serve cocktails are supposed to wait until the last guest has arrived. Therefore, you do not go before the hour at which you are invited—nor are you polite if you keep every one waiting longer than a very few minutes for you.

Full web worms often make fruit and ornamental trees unsightly because of the webs which they spin and which they enlarge from time to time as food or room is required, until sometimes three feet long. The mature caterpillars drop to the ground late in the season and form cocoons under stones or rubbish, turning into moths when Spring comes. Early spraying with arsenate of lead before the web has been formed will protect the trees.

Case Records of a Psychologist

By Dr. George W. Crane

Psychologist, Northwestern University

If you are interested in the world's largest psychology clinic, then read my answers to Ted's questions. Since courses in applied psychology have been offered only in the last 10 or 15 years by American colleges and universities, most college graduates have never had a chance to study such matter except in this daily column. A number of universities now employ these daily Case Records in their classroom work.

BY Dr. George W. Crane

CASE R-141: Ted T., aged 28, is certified public accountant.

"Recently I visited my home town," he remarked, "and had a long visit with an old friend."

"He has been married five years, but is on the verge of a divorce. I tried to advise him as well as I could, but I think he ought to write to you."

"I told him to tell you the plain facts as simply as possible, and then you'd prescribe what to do."

"But he wonders if you'd take time to answer his letter. Besides, he is sensitive about writing his personal problems. Dr. Crane, how do you handle the vast mail service in connection with your Case Records feature?"

DIAGNOSIS:
The heavy mail connected with this column, can truly be looked upon as a broad, correspondence course in clinical psychology.

Many people, like Lolita in yesterday's Case Record, feel afraid to tell their personal problems and innermost secrets to the home folks.

But they become so burdened with them that they feel they simply must get outside advice. They need perspective. As you well know, however, it is difficult to take such a detached view of our own problems.

So I have maintained this mail service, as a university psychology clinic, made available to scores of cities and states by the progressive educational viewpoint of your editors.

Types Of Personal Problems

About 35 per cent of the problems about which people write me, deal with parent-child or teacher-child situations. Stuttering, finger-nail biting, truancy, enuresis, fears and tics—these are some of the dilemmas, not to mention sex problems of youngsters, which are a surprisingly large field for parental worries.

Perhaps another 35 per cent of the mail pertains to love, marriage and threatened divorce. It is very common for a college woman to write as follows:

"I have followed your Case Records for years, never thinking I would ever be confronted by such situations, but now I am terrified and don't know where else to turn. 'After 10 years of perfect married happiness, I have just learned so and so . . ."

What People Worry About
The balance of my mail consists of worries over epilepsy and insanity, venereal infection, menopausal complexes and obesity, advertising problems or sales and personnel techniques, methods of becoming better conversationalists, public speakers, writers, etc.

A goodly number of letters come from fellow professional men about technical problems. Since applied psychology wasn't taught in the colleges till the last decade or so, its established laws and techniques are not yet widely disseminated.

Incidentally, many of the cases described herein haven't been discussed in the college textbooks even yet, which is why many universities and medical schools employ this newspaper column as collateral reading in their technical courses.

I employ a dictaphone in answering letters, and personally sign every one. Your letters will get speedy replies, however, if you write to me in care of your newspaper, which forwards all mail, unopened, so you have complete privacy. If I am away on a speaking trip, however, I may fall behind by a week or two in answering, so don't expect 24-hour service.

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing stamped, self-addressed envelope and a note to cover return or printing costs when you seek personal advice or one of his psychological charts.)

Money Is at Root of Many Domestic Tiffs

BY DOROTHY DIX

The money question is just as controversial in the home as it is in politics, and balancing the budget brings on as many domestic fights as the wife totes the pocketbook. The party of the other part always thinks that he or she has a right to supervise the expenditures of the other, and ask:

"What did you do with your pay envelope last week?"

And woe be to the unlucky man who has bought a fishing rod with the money his wife designed to spend on a facial and a new wave, or the foolhardy woman who has blown in $15 on a new hat that her husband thinks should have been better invested in cigarettes and golf balls. That the one who earns the money has a prior claim to it seems to be a proposition that neither husbands nor wives can accept, and so no wonder it breeds quarrels and often has tragic results, as is witnessed by this letter from a business woman: "I have worked earnestly to get ahead," she writes, "and at the age of 25 have a fine, steady position and am earning more than many men of my age. Ever since I have been out of school I have supported my parents, both of whom are old and feeble and not able to help themselves. I have never questioned the fact that it is my duty to take care of them, for they have always given me love and care and tenderness."

"Now my problem is this: Last year I was married and my husband cannot become reconciled to the fact that a good bit of the money I earn must go to the support of my parents. I don't feel that he has any right to object to this as I am working and not giving them a penny he earns. In fact, at the present time he is not working at all and I am making the living for both of us."

"Since I have the entire responsibility of my household and am willing to work to help my own family, which certainly includes my parents as well as my husband, I feel that what I do with my money is my own business, and that I should not have to account to anyone for it."

"However, whenever my husband thinks I have given my parents a few dollars he starts counting up what I have spent and what I have left, and there is a row in which he says unpleasant things about my father and mother being parasites and in which I am reminded that my first duty is to him."

"I am not going to discontinue helping my parents as long as they need it, but this continual arguing over money is undermining the very foundation of our marriage."

And it is. Nothing could more completely shatter a wife's love and respect for her husband than to find out that he regarded her merely as a peon whose wages belong to him, and she has no right to the money she earned.

Equally disillusioning is it to discover that she has married a man so greedy that he begrudges the few dollars she gives to her poor old father and mother to keep them from starving.

Of course, women often take the same attitude toward what their husbands do for their parents, and in both cases the reaction of the men and women, who have to help their families by stealth is the same. They come to despise their slave-driving, grasping mates.

Youth Has the Right to Play
Dear Dorothy Dix—I am a boy of nineteen and have finished my first year of study to be a doctor. My problem is this: My mother and father object to my going out with girls. No girl in particular, just girls. I am not thinking about love or marriage. I merely want to play around with nice girls, but my parents think that this will take my mind off my books. I am an only child and it is lonesome at home just sitting around with old people. Do you think they are right? W. F. Answer:

Far from it. Girls are just as much a part of a boy's education as arithmetic or English literature, and it is just as important for him to learn how to figure out the feminine sex and to speak its language as it is to be able to add two and two together and know what it comes to, or to have read the classics.

Parents make a great mistake when they try to keep their boys away from girls. The great idea in this is that by so doing they will keep Johnny and Tommy from thinking about Marie and Sally and prevent them from falling in love, or committing the terrible crime of getting married before they are forty.

But this plausible theory doesn't work out in real life. Mama can quarantine Johnny against girls, but she can't keep him from thinking about them, and the more he is not allowed to associate with the creatures, the more alluring they become and the easier game he becomes for some designing hussy when he gets grown.

It is the boys who have always played with girls and fought with them and been in love and out of love with half a dozen of them, who are wise to the fact sex, and who are fitted to hold their own in a world of women.

It is especially important that a boy who is going to be a doctor should begin early in life to make an intensive study of girls, for most of his patients are going to be women and his success will depend upon his knowledge of their idiosyncrasies and peculiarities of mind, as well as body.

Girls Cannot Sacrifice Honor
Dear Miss Dix—I am eighteen, working as a secretary for a middle-aged man whose familiarities are so disgusting to me that I want to quit my job. I have never done anything to foster his attentions, which make every day so miserable and tormenting that I would rather be dead than working in such a hell. I would not stand it another day if it were not that the financial condition at home is such that I must keep working, and I do not know where I could get another position. I will follow whatever advice you give me. TODDY.

There is only one piece of advice that anyone, who has your interests at heart, can give you, Toddy, and that is to leave your position at once, no matter how badly your money is needed at home. Better that your family should go hungry and cold than that you should sell your soul to buy them comfort. Don't be afraid you won't find work. You will. A girl as straightforward, and clean and honest and

by EDWIN H. PERKINS

If you enjoyed peony blooms in your neighbor's garden during late spring, and have decided to obtain some for yourself, this is an ideal time to make the purchase. You might think a plant producing such gorgeous blooms is tender, but peonies are among the most hardy and easily grown of garden flowers. In addition, they are rarely attacked by insects, are not troubled with fungus plagues, and grow in all kinds of soil.

While they prefer full sunshine, they are usually content when planted in partial shade. Never, however, will they tolerate full shade. This goes for the singles, doubles and all in-between types.

So accommodating a plant must have some preference, even if that delight is not demanded. Peonies prefer deeply dug clay loam that has been greatly enriched with rotted cow manure, long before the roots are planted.

Buy healthy three to five eyed divisions. Plant with a minimum of delay. Set the roots so that the top of the division is three or more inches from the surface. In extremely cold climates this depth may be increased, while in the south it can be reduced to two inches.

After the root is set, and several times during each growing season, it is well to dust the ground around the plant with agricultural lime. This prevents soil acidity which is the one item that peonies detest.

Blooms will follow next spring, but real perfection is unlikely until two years from now, when the peony planting is expected to be at its best.

My Neighbor Says—

After gladioli bulbs have been dug and thoroughly dried in the sun for several days, stalks should then be cut off, new bulbs separated from the old and stored in a fairly cool part of the cellar for the winter.

Half an hour is ample time to allow for baking of medium-sized apples.

Chiffon is easily washed in warm soapy water. Do not have the water hot, otherwise the color will wash out. Rinse it well in clear, warm water. Wring smoothly and put through the clothes wringer. Avoid wringing with the hands. Open the chiffon out flat on the wrong side.

Glycerine will remove tea and coffee stains from table linen. Rub spots with glycerine and let stand a few minutes, then wash linen in the usual way.

With the principle and backbone that you have, will make her way and find some employer who wants just those qualities in his secretary.

After all, there are not many men like the lecherous beast you are working for.

Guns are Not Harmless Toys, Parents Warned

BY ANGELO PATRI

A year ago this month one of the finest boys imaginable stood on the shores of his summer home, a lovely quiet spot on the bank of a New England river. He was about to enjoy a swim but stood a moment to watch the spots of dancing sunlight that filtered down through the great elm to the golden-brown water.

He felt a sudden, sharp pain in his stomach and clapped his hand on it just as the sound of a shot reached his ears. He looked down at his hand and saw it was covered with blood. He could not understand. Then a row boat hove in sight manned by a boy at the oars and another seated in the stern, a little gun across his knees. They saw the wounded boy standing in the sunlight, blood pouring from his stomach, and instantly made for him. Fast as they could get help they got it and the hospital took charge of the boy.

Guns Destroy Beyond Restoration
We'll skip the awful weeks that followed when a father and mother hung over the bed of their son, watching him go by inches, in pain, day by day for long, long anxious weeks. The little town watched with them, prayed with them, hoped with them, but death claimed its own and bowed in sorrow to the angel with the shining sword. Neighbors, family and friends were in tears at a loss no power on earth could mend.

Why did the boy shoot into the woods? Why didn't he want to round the bend? Why didn't he know better than to shoot blindly like that? What's the use? The only why that counts at all is why he had a gun. Guns are made to shoot with, and the boy had been given this gun for a birthday gift by his father who loved him as his other father loved his son.

I believe that all boys and some girls should be taught to use guns. In my experience the time to do that teaching is when they are old enough to appreciate it, to understand that a life destroyed is beyond restoration. Guns are instruments of death and children have no use for such an instrument. There is no fun in that kind of a game.

Grown-Ups Are Responsible
Sport? Grown men and women who enjoy killing birds and animals are their own masters. Everyone to his choice. Children are not responsible sportsmen. They are children and without judgment or reason in the use of an instrument of death because they know nothing of death. The word has no meaning for them as it has for grown people. Experience has woven tragedy in its sound for us, but not for the children.

It is small comfort for the father and mother of the lost boy to see wreaths on the short grave. They are bereft of their child. They cannot understand. Surely they will hear his laugh as he splashes into the water. Surely he will race in calling for a cookie, and can he please, go to the ball game? Surely he will round the corner in just a minute!

Guns, BB's, rifles, pistols, however, small, are murderous weapons, especially in the country where people do not expect their appearance. They are not toys. They should have no relation to child's play. The man or woman who sells, gives, allows a gun to a child is responsible for what that child does with that gun. But sorrow does not bring resurrection.

Mr. Patri will give personal attention to inquiries from parents and school teachers on the care and development of children. Write him in care of this paper, enclosing a three-cent stamp, addressed envelope for reply.

HIGH TIDE

By Frances Hanna

Chapter 38
Salvaged Again

Jan was settled as comfortably as cramped space permitted on the narrow couch beside Lance's bed in the drawing room compartment on the West Coast Limited.

"Jan," Lance murmured, his voice both meek and weak. "I'd like you to read the special air mail letter I had from Rose yesterday. It's under my pillow."

"How are you feeling, dear?" she asked, reaching under his head, observing the new lines of pain in his thin face.

"Better, Jan, he says I'm going to walk again. Maybe a long time with crutches, but eventually I'll be on my feet. I never really believed."

She saw tears in the hollows of his cheeks. Swiftly, she leaned to kiss them, then sat back, pretending absorption in the letter. It was surprisingly short and very much to the point. Johnny, Rose wrote, had a grand new job in New York. They were leaving at once for the east. The prospect of success had changed him. They had decided really to make a go of their marriage and they had at last fallen deeply in love. She wanted Lance to know she was terribly

Provision of School Books For Needy Pupils Proposed At Meeting of Apostolate

A plan for providing school books for needy children at St. Mary, St. Theresa and Sacred Heart parishes, similar to the one now in operation at St. Joseph's church, was suggested at the meeting of the board of directors of Appleton Apostolate last night at Catholic home. It was recommended that a committee of the Apostolate meet with Holy Name societies of these three parishes and attempt to set up in each a working plan such as has been in effect at St. Joseph's parish where the Ladies Aid society for many years has raised funds to maintain a library of school books which, upon investigation of family circumstances, are loaned to needy children at the beginning of each school year and recalled at the end of the term.

The committee appointed to undertake this task consists of Roscoe T. Gage, chairman; William H. Becher, George Barry and Joseph Brown.

Appointments made by John R. Riedl, new director of the organization, included the renaming of Mrs. George Nemacheck as chairman of the committee on relief and welfare and of Dr. R. T. McCarty of the Big Brother committee. Others are Mrs. Bert Cowan and Mrs. August Arens, co-chairmen of the Big Sister committee; Mrs. Joseph Loessel and Mrs. T. L. Held, co-chairmen of the committee on visitation at county and city institutions; Gustave Keller, chairman of Catholic literature; Stanley A. Staidl, chairman of the committee on legal aid.

The finance committee consists of Roscoe T. Gage, director; William H. Becher, P. J. Heenan, Harold Tummers and Mr. Riedl, ex-officio member.

Wants Meetings Open

The director recommended that all parish workers be invited to the board meetings, hitherto open only to board members, and the Rev. Henry C. Head, diocesan director of the Apostolate who was present at the meeting, supported this recommendation, adding that all parish workers should be at the meetings where policies and problems are discussed. Father Head also recommended that at least once a month, in addition to the board meetings, all parish workers officially appointed by the pastors and approved by the board, meet with the chairman of relief and welfare and with Miss Katherine Mortell, Oshkosh, family case work consultant for this vicinity, to discuss problems and phases of the work and devise ways and means of assisting the people they are serving. The recommendations were endorsed by the board and will be put into effect immediately.

The Rev. William H. Grace, pastor of St. Mary church, and Miss Mortell were present at the meeting also.

The board voted to hold a general meeting and dinner in late October, the exact date to be announced later. The committee in charge will consist of Harold Tummers, chairman; Mrs. Stewart Neville, Mrs. A. J. Pfankuch, Joseph Brown, Mrs. A. J. Theiss, Miss Katherine Derby and Miss Cecilia Wilz.

Bills amounting to $222.19 covering relief for the months of June and July were allowed.

Schiaparelli Inspires, Worries U. S. Designers

BY AMY PORTER

New York — (F)— Madame Elsa Schiaparelli, famous Paris couturier, arrives in this country at a critical time.

This fall, for the first time in history, there'll be "American Fashion Openings," instead of "Paris Fashion Openings."

Designers and manufacturers were nervous and self-conscious in the face of that great event, they'd been feverishly trying to organize themselves to assume the style leadership Paris has lost, when Schiaparelli — one of Paris' greatest names — arrived by clipper plane, tired, hatless, war-weary, but self-assured and full of ideas.

Her arrival sent tremors through the industry. The warm personal welcome it gave her was tempered by the fear that her presence would delay their weaning-from-Paris process.

Where will Schiaparelli fit into the new picture? Will she establish a business and become a part of the new American culture? Or will she keep alive the remembrance of Paris, be a connecting link between that city and America until Paris designers can re-establish themselves as world dictators of style?

Schiaparelli, of course, scarcely is in a position to speak frankly. After all, her shop is still open in Paris, her fellow designers are working there. Anything she says may be used against her—or her friends.

She does say this much: "I see no reason why America cannot build up a culture of its own. I know there's designing talent here, and if it is given encouragement, it will develop more and more. Certainly American sports clothes have been the best in the world for years."

But she denies that she intends to stay here.

Lecture Tour

She will start a lecture tour early in September, and create 20 original designs to carry along to illustrate her talks on "Clothes and the Woman."

It will be interesting to see which has the greater effect on style developments — these 20 original Schiaparelli's, or the hundreds of models that will be turned out by talented, but comparatively anonymous, American designers.

Schiaparelli says that when her tour ends in December, she'll return to Paris. If she does, however, it will not be because she didn't have plenty of inducements to stay.

Manufacturers may declare their devotion to home-talent designers, but the moment this lady from Paris stepped off the clipper you could almost hear them sigh: Ah! Thank heaven, Schiaparelli will pull us out of this hole."

At least four manufacturers have offered her $5,000 a year for the use of her name on labels. No American designer can make that money without turning a hand. She also has been offered $500 apiece for original designs. If she cares to, she can establish a permanent — and probably prosperous — business here.

She says nothing about sending her daughter "Gogo" — who has been in New York several months — back to Paris, so there may be

Employers Urged to 'Release Willingly' National Guardsmen

The Appleton Chamber of Commerce is urging employers to help, indirectly, in the national defense program by "releasing willingly" employees who are members of Company D and who must attend the 3-week training period at Camp McCoy, Kenneth H. Corbett, secretary, said today.

Corbett reported that employers whose personnel will be affected by the guard company's absence "have shown cooperation and understanding" and pointed out that this year, particularly, such an attitude is most helpful.

Company D leaves early Sunday morning for Camp McCoy, where it will participate in 3-week maneuvers involving 20,000 regular army troops and 45,000 national guardsmen.

personal as well as business ties to hold her here.

But fashion history will have to wait while Schiaparelli gathers up a few clothes for herself. She only brought a scant 20 pounds of luggage, most of that in jewelry, valued at $70,000.

She Hurried

I packed in one hour and left Biarritz just before the frontier was closed," she said. "I've been traveling for a month. What I want is rest — and time to buy a hat."

She looked very tired, but still chic, when she received reporters. She wore a plain slim black dress with a small white crocheted collar. Her hair was in a pompadour. "We waited till the last possible moment to leave Paris," she said. "My face was black from the smoke screen they used to cover the departure of refugees."

"In Biarritz, several members of the couture assembled to decide what to do. We met in Lanvin's glass-enclosed office at night. There was a thunder storm, and the sound of thunder was mixed up with the sound of bombs dropping nearby. While we talked, the lights went out. It was sinister."

"We decided to make up our collections there in Biarritz. But, you know," she smiled and shrugged, "we had guests we didn't expect."

Poorer but Wiser

Hyde Park, N. Y. — (F)— President Roosevelt's thumbnail financial and intellectual accounting of his past 12 years in public office is that he is a poorer but a wiser man.

Asked today about Republican candidate Wendell Willkie's proposal that high government officials and their relatives be required to file a detailed listing of their personal assets on entering and leaving office, Mr. Roosevelt smiled.

All he had to say, he remarked, was that he was a poorer and wiser man than when he went to Albany as governor of New York in 1928.

Lois Mary Prasher, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Prasher, 827 Kamps avenue, submitted to an emergency operation for appendicitis Thursday at St. Elizabeth hospital.

Evangelicals Of District Begin Camp

In annual trust, for the thirty-fifth consecutive year, Appleton district Evangelicals congregated at the district campground at Forest Junction Thursday for the opening of the annual religious assembly which will be in progress there for ten days. The opening sermon on Thursday evening was preached by the Rev. H. A. Block of Bonduel, who spoke on "Measuring the Church."

Dating back to 1906, when the present Appleton District Campmeeting association originated as a campmeeting association of the Forest Junction circuit, the meetings have been held regularly at the same location. Originally held in June, the meetings were postponed until August in 1920 on account of a small pox epidemic, and the latest date has been retained since. In the same year, a Christian Endeavor and Sunday school convention was appended to the campmeeting as an annual event, to which since has been added a school of religion and methods.

John Seybold, Forest Junction, treasurer of the board of directors of the campmeeting association at present, is the last survivor of the original board elected in the spring of 1906. While that year marks the beginning of the present setup, campmeetings with less recurring regularity had been held by Evangelical church groups in this community since the 1860's.

Business Meeting
In addition to the daily worship services constituting the assembly program, an annual business meeting of the campmeeting association is scheduled for one o'clock next Tuesday afternoon. A proposed revision of the articles of organization adopted in 1906 will be voted on, dealing chiefly with amendments limiting membership in the association to members of the Evangelical church.

While more than 1,000 persons are expected to attend the services at the camp on Sunday, the heaviest attendance will be registered following the formal opening of the Christian Endeavor and Sunday school convention next Wednesday afternoon. The Rev. H. A. Bernhardt, Seymour, opens the convention, with the Rev. R. R. Wandrey of Markesan, dean and registrar of the school of religion and methods, presenting the courses in the school at the same time.

Sunday's program opens with a Sunday school session at 9 o'clock conducted by Raymond Rusch, superintendent of the Raintoul Sunday school on the Brillion field. The Rev. Harry E. Krug, Appleton, Appleton district superintendent, conducts a worship service at 10:15. The annual district rally of the Albright Brotherhood is held at 2:15 in the afternoon, at which the Rev. A. E. Kurth, Detroit, Mich., one of two guest speakers for the assembly, makes his initial appearance. The Rev. Mr. Kurth also preaches at 7:45 Sunday evening.

Neighborhood Night On Program at Camp

Science Discovers Radio Channel Linking Americas

BY STEPHEN J. McDONOUGH

Washington—Discovery of a radio pathway linking all of the Americas was reported today by scientists of Argentina and the United States.

Dr. A. T. Cosentino of the Argentine ministry of the interior and Dr. J. H. Dellinger of the United States Bureau of Standards declared in a joint article that during the northern winter and southern summer radio signals going north and south are 25 times greater and 15 times less variable than broadcasts between the United States and Europe.

They declined to comment on the economic and political value of this radio link. But others pointed out that it makes possible closer radio and telephone communication in the western hemisphere.

The two scientists declared that the phenomenon of a radio channel north and south instead of east and west is due to disturbances in the ionosphere—the reflecting layers of electrified air in the upper atmosphere which bounce radio signals back to the earth.

Storms Interfere
Electrical storms occur constantly in the ionosphere and interfere with radio communication. They were attributed by Dr. Cosentino and Dr. Dellinger to influences of the magnetic field of the earth near the north magnetic pole and the Aurora Borealis, the effects being more pronounced in high latitudes.

As a result during periods of great storminess in the ionosphere direct radio communication between the United States and Europe may be cut off or seriously interfered with. When this occurs radio messages are relayed to Europe by way of Buenos Aires, Argentina because little interference occurs in broadcasts sent southward.

Both long and short wave radio signals are affected alike in the natural western hemisphere channel, making a mutual exchange of commercial messages, broadcast programs, and contacts between radio amateurs easier during the coming winter than similar exchanges between the Americas and Europe.

Heil Picks Site For Guard Base

now, but I have it from competent sources that I can't mention that we'll get another air squadron."

Heil continued:

"The adjutant general hasn't recommended either Madison or Milwaukee to me. This morning he gave me to understand that either place would be all right. The good general also gave me to understand that we would get another WPA grant for a second project. If his memory isn't so clear this afternoon I will absolutely go to the war department myself."

Third Air Base
"I'm going to allocate this squadron to Milwaukee. But I've still got enough friends in the United States government, even if I am a Republican and the Democrats are in power, to get another squadron for Madison and a third one for Superior before Jan. 1."

Replying, Immell said he made no official recommendation to the governor yesterday because none was asked, but added:

"I think it's been apparent to everyone for a long time that I'd like to see the squadron located at Madison."

Jackson began firing questions at the governor, asking whether Immell's opinion as the air base site had been sought by the governor. Heil retorted:

"No just wait a minute. I'm not being cross examined. If you don't like it I'll take that second squadron away from Madison and give it to some other city."

After another verbal exchange Heil asked:

"Would you have been so insulting to your governor if I had given that squadron to Madison?"

Egypt Cancels Leaves Of All Officers, Men

Cairo, Egypt.—(P)—Leaves of all officers and men were cancelled by the police commandant today "as a precautionary measure against emergencies."

Police were urged to keep a vigilant watch for "maintenance of public security and safeguarding of public security."

Egypt generally received calmly reports of heavy Italian troops movements on the Libyan-Egyptian border and of Italian plans to start an offensive in the western desert in an effort to crack British bases. She is determined to keep out of war unless directly attacked by Italy, informed sources asserted, and is confident British forces are more than adequate to cope with any Italian threat.

Such was her confidence in the British and her desire to lessen the danger of being drawn into conflict with Italy that she withdrew her own well-equipped troops from along the Libyan frontier several weeks ago.

One Robin Ruins One Summer of Fishing

Denver.—(P)—E. F. Ellis doesn't begrudge a young robin a recovery from a broken leg but he is a little disgruntled over his fish worm situation in the Ellis yard.

His daughter, Mary Lou, 12, found the bird with the injured leg. She applied match stick splints. Then the whole family started digging for worms to feed the invalid.

By the time the robin recovered, Ellis said the yard appeared to have been subjected to a miniature bombing attack, and there wasn't a fish worm left.

Higher Dairy Prices Aid to GOP Campaign

BY JOHN WYNGAARD

Madison—Much of the confidence felt by the Wisconsin Republican party organization about its prospects for a continuation of power in state government after the November elections is attributable to the fact that Wisconsin dairy prices, the touchstone of economic conditions in a large part of the state, are higher than in any recent year and appear likely to rise in the months to come.

With most students of state political trends agreeing that one of the reasons for the smashing defeat of the LaFollette Progressive regime in the capitol two years ago was the currently low dairy price level, it can be concluded today that the same factor will favor the Republican party and the Heil administration in its objective of extending its political holdings in the fall elections.

The dairy farmers of Wisconsin are now receiving prices considerably higher than last year, and also higher than in 1938, the last election year.

Most Product Milk

There are about 180,000 farmers in Wisconsin—a huge majority of the total of about 200,000—who earn their incomes by producing milk.

About 52,000 of them market their product to cheese factors, and an additional 67,000 are butter farmers. The following figures, taken from official economic reports of the state department of agriculture, show comparative butter and cheese prices in July during the last three years.

Year	Cheese	Butter
1940	13.62c	25.48c
1939	12.95c	23.23c
1938	11.95c	25.39c

Moreover, a strong belief exists among state government experts that increases in exports, such as the recent purchase by the British purchasing commission, decreases in imports due to the military troubles of Denmark and the Netherlands, and a strengthening of consumer demands reflecting increased employment under the impetus of the industrial boom growing out of defense spending, will push butter and cheese prices up higher in succeeding months.

Upward Trend

Butter prices for the first week in August, for example, averaged 27 cents for 92 score, state economists pointed out, and cold storage holdings are now lower than they have been for many months.

Because condenser prices are gauged on butter and cheese prices, farmers producing milk for the evaporated milk market are also getting the benefit of the upward trend, it was shown.

The average price per cwt. for condenser milk in July of this year was $1.245, compared with only $1.18 last year and $1.17 in 1938.

Because of the huge production of milk in Wisconsin, even a relatively innocuous rise in butter and cheese prices has a tremendous influence on Wisconsin agricultural incomes. Ralph E. Ammon, department of agriculture director, has frequently told farm audiences that a rise of one cent a hundredweight in the price of raw milk means an increase of $1,000,000 a year in Wisconsin rural incomes because the annual milk production of Wisconsin farms exceeds 10,000,000,000 pounds.

Beginning with 1840, every U. S. president elected in a year ending in zero died in office—1840, William H. Harrison; 1880, Abraham Lincoln; 1880, James A. Garfield; 1900, McKinley; 1920, Warren G. Harding.

Sales Tax May Go for Relief

Michigan Counties Asking One-Third of Money be Given Them

Porters of a proposal to earmark a slice of Michigan's sales tax revenues and distribute it to the counties for relief financing on a population basis are awaiting a mass meeting of two state associations at Grand Rapids this fall for a decision whether the proposal will be pressed.

The meeting will combine the efforts of the state association of county supervisors—which has proposed earmarking one-third of the sales tax collections—and the state association of county welfare boards, which yesterday in convention here refused to endorse the plan definitely.

H. R. Gregory, Clinton county welfare administrator, was the only delegate to question the plan. He said, "I don't see why we should open the door to more public spending unless it is on a basis of need."

The convention adopted a resolution ordering appointment of a committee to work with the supervisors association to determine whether to press for initiatory legislation to divert 30 per cent of the sales tax money to finance all forms of relief by the counties, or to initiate legislation to enlarge the items for which the state matches funds, or merely to ask the legislature to enlarge those items to include hospitalization, county infirmaries, mothers pensions and soldiers and sailors relief.

Infantile Paralysis Near Epidemic Stage In Ohio Valley Region

Huntington, W. Va.—(P)—Health officials of two states today renewed warnings of a possible major outbreak of infantile paralysis in this Ohio valley region where more than 40 cases of the malady have been reported in the last two weeks.

Dr. A. M. Price of Charleston, W. Va., head of the state health department's division of preventable diseases, said the outbreak had reached "epidemic" stage at Huntington, where 26 cases have been listed, and named six West Virginia counties adjacent to Ohio and Kentucky as a "danger zone."

One girl died yesterday.

Although city health officer W. W. Strange expected no major epidemic, he termed the situation "serious" and appealed for strict enforcement of a voluntary quarantine of children under 16 which has closed theaters and playgrounds and suspended Sunday schools classes.

Setting records at Springvale Golf course is becoming a favorite pastime for Bud Wendlandt, foremost golfer of the New London club. At the jamboree Thursday he sank his second hole-in-one, the sixth in the history of the course. The shot was made on No. 3, the only hole on which aces have been scored. He is shown above as he toured the fairways with Henry O'Connell, manager of the Riverside course at Clintonville. Last week Wendlandt set a new course record. (Post-Crescent Photo.)

Straight golf was the keynote of the jamboree but it wasn't all straight, literally, as witness Dave Vanderveer working his way out of a trap on No. 7. Ralph Mortenson watches. The home team scored its first three tallies on McIntire, starting pitcher for Appleton. Jim Higgins took over in the fourth, allowing six hits to McIntire's four.

Buzz Hoffken and Don Torason struck out, but Al Standaert doubled in two runs. Bernie Byrne then was walked to load the sacks again, but Jim Higgins, next batter up, hit into a fielder's choice.

In starting the seventh, Murph Malattia of the Papermakers got a life on first baseman Emil Belich's mischance. He came all the way home on Manager Dancsak's single into center field. Dancsak went out on fielder's choice, and the next two popped up.

Rudy Novak, Bluejay slugger, was robbed of a homer in the third inning when the ball struck a light pole in center field. The three base clout served, however, to bring in one run, and Novak himself scored on Mike Rudnik's single. Butkovich homered in the fourth inning with none on base.

An error by shortstop Hawk advanced Rudnik in the second inning, enabling him to score after Bluege flew out to right field.

Bears Trade Notre Dame Tackle to Pittsburgh

Pittsburgh—(P)—The Steelers today announced acquisition of Alex Shellenko, former Notre Dame tackle, from the Chicago Bears. To put through the deal the club agreed to give the Bears the Steelers' tenth pick in next year's draft.

The Pittsburgh team received two other tackles from the New York Giants, in carrying out an old deal. They were Jack Saunders, formerly of Southern Methodist, and Jack Yuric, who played with Jersey City last fall.

Chaff'n Chatter

By Gordon H. McIntyre

Yesterday we gathered our golf clubs from hither and yon, wiped the dust and the mildew off the golf bag and galloped over to New London for the annual jamboree at Riverside course. It was the first round this season and perhaps it will be the last because of other activities.

We drew a trio of Kaukauna Kulprits, beg pardon, golfers, and it was a lot of fun. They were Herman Baier, with whom we've played at the jamboree twice in three years, Art Mongin, Jr., and Stan Kauth, the latter manager of the Fox River course at Kaukauna.

Somehow, Stan talked the other two into a partner match with Stan and yours truly playing Mongin and Baier. And it was fish, or duck soup—or just plain luck. When Stan was off on a hole we were lucky. (We actually had a couple pars.) And when we were battling the ball from one side of the green to the other as on No. 3, then Stan put 'er in the can for a point or two.

There was only one bad moment in the match. That was on No. 5 when Stan got cornie or corny and walloped three straight into the tall stuff they boast about in Iowa. That farmer could boast too, because once you got into the stuff you were lost to daylight. One of the caddies went looking for Stan's ball and we had to yell so he could find his way out. He didn't find the ball but he came back with three others that some cornie golfer had fired. Stan accepted one and charged the other two off to experience.

It was a great afternoon for a jamboree and a big crowd had a great time. The proof of that was the shouts and yells you could hear all over the layout and the barber shop quartets that sprang up after dark. The players were from Oshkosh, Waupaca, Chicago, Appleton, DePere, Clintonville in great numbers, Shawano, Fremont, Gillett, Milwaukee, Manawa, Kaukauna, Fond du Lac, Hortonville, Wega, Bear Creek, Little Chute, Green Bay, Stevens Point and one was from Hammond, Ind.

The prize list was the kind that makes the lads stick around until the last gift is handed out. Harvey Romberg took the prize that went for just being there and the blind bogey winner was C. W. Gilmore, Shawano.

Long drive on No. 2 was a wallop by Joe Kuklinski, Oshkosh. Joe played immediately behind us and he was always driving the ball onto the green while we were putting—and those holes aren't short. Bob Kolf, Oshkosh, was second and grabbed a prize. (That guy never misses a prize and never misses a jamboree. He must have enough stuff to start a store.) Long drive on No. 4 was by R. McCullum.

Low net was 57 by E. Cooley, up from New Holstein, while second was F. Dudley with a 63. Low gross was George Rehban with a 76. Elmer Jansen was nearest the pin on No. 3 and Bud Wendlandt got his ace on No. 3. The ball landed about a foot above the pin and trickled back into the cup. The green was the toughest on the course yesterday.

There were eight or more birds on No. 5 with Jack Taylor of Butte des Morts getting the prize. Gus Vandra had 14 fives for eight holes and won a prize while G. H. O'Connell had the most fours. O. Froelich had 158 strokes for the 18 holes and Gerald Jolin was next "worst" with 128. J. K. Anderson took a nine on No. 3 for a prize and Frank Stratton of Waupaca a 10 on No. 4 for another.

The thing we liked most about the layout was the way the trees are marked on the fourth fairway. Each has a sign or a number so that a ball may be lined easily up by caddies and players. It helps a lot for us know.

Herb Gresenz was general chairman of the event and he did so well they'll probably elect him again next year.

To win his game Sunday, Vans Valley will have to put forth its every effort at Denmark. There is little doubt but that it will be the Valley's toughest game so far this season for Johnny Rowe, Denmark hurler, will bear down every inning. He has had his ups and downs this season, but on occasion has demonstrated that his pitching days are far from over. In fact he has twice outpitched his opponent, but his mates have failed to deliver the necessary runs. In one of the games he allowed but two hits, a home run beating him.

The Valley, on the other hand, has demonstrated that it is a heavy slugging nine and has repeatedly blasted opposing pitchers. While Denmark has only Rowe on whom to depend for hurling duties, Vans Valley relies on three, Louis Walinski, Dago Schuler, and the aged Hyson Metoxen. All three have shown well this year and it is hoped that they can keep the Dane slugs in check.

Duck Creek should have an easy time against Oneida on the latter's diamond Sunday.

Neenah All Stars in Quarter-Final Round

Six Outstanding Teams of Softball Meet Play Tonight at Spencer Field

Y. M. C. A. SOFTBALL DISTRICT TOURNEY

LAST NIGHT'S RESULTS

Sunlite Tops 6, Kaukauna Klub 2.
Courtney-Plummer 5, Borden's 0.
Marathon 5, Wisconsin eVis 1.

TONIGHT'S GAMES

6:15—Sunlite Tops versus Astor Bombers.
7:30—Marathon versus Institute.
8:45—Rozy's versus Y. M. C. A.

With three more teams falling beside the wayside last night, competition is growing keener in the American Amateur Softball association district tournament being sponsored by the Y. M. C. A. at Spencer street field. Tonight's games bring together the six outstanding teams in the tournament and should produce the finest ball seen thus far.

Courtney-Plummer All Stars of Neenah reached the quarter-final round last evening by downing Borden's All Stars of New London, 5 to 0. Sunlite Baby Tops of Oshkosh established themselves as title threats when they stopped the strong Kaukauna Klub squad by a 6 to 2 count. In a game that saw all the scoring done in the first two innings, Marathon Paper Mills of Menasha trimmed Wisconsin Veterans Home of Waupaca, 5 to 1.

Hotel Astor Bombers of Green Bay and Sunlite Tops lead off at 6:15 this evening in what may well be the feature scrap of the tournament. The tilt will be anybody's ball game, both teams having piled up enviable records this season and boasting lineups studded with stars. It is uncertain whether Letlow, Blas, Bruder and other Green Bay Packers will appear in the Bay lineup as in previous games but the Oshkosh team will have Edwards of basketball fame and the Ducks boys in their batting order.

Institute Favored

In the second game at 7:30, the powerful Paper Chemistry Institute of Appleton will clash with Marathons. The outcome is a tossup with the Appleton boys given a slight edge on the strength of their past record. Blick and Filz will be available for the home team with Westberg and Schuerer for Menasha.

Tonight's finale at 8:45 will show the strong Appleton Y. M. C. A. team against Rozy's Tavern of Two Rivers, the latter being winners over Scharr's Tavern of Brillion. The Appleton team is conceded a thin margin because of the host of pitchers available, among them being Diener, Branchford, Greisch and Crane. E. McClair is expected to handle the mound for Two Rivers.

Sunlite Tops opened last night's bill by taking the measure of Kaukauna Klub in a fast and well-played game. Although outlived, 6 to 5, the winners were able to bunch their blows and convert them into runs. Sunlites singled in the first frame as J. Duex counted but was forced at second by Luther. Luther gained second on a hit by Binner but was forced at third by Kachur, Binner going to second. Binner went to third on a wild pitch and scored on a passed ball.

Kaukauna Leads
Kaukauna Klub took a thin lead in the third inning by scoring two runs. Giordana singled but was forced by Johnson at second. D VanAbel doubled to score Johnson and Koehne singled to plate VanAbel. It was the end of the scoring for Kaukauna, Kachur tightening and allowing only two more hits the balance of the route.

The Kaukauna lead was short-lived for Oshkosh knotted the count in its half of the fourth as Mitchell worked Alger for a walk, took second on a passed ball and scored on a safety authored by Joavag. Sunlites staged a winning rally in the sixth with four markers. Kochur opened with a 1-base hit and was sacrificed to second. Mitchell singled to score the pitcher. Mitchell gained

Al Lopez Sparking Pirates in Drive

Pittsburgh—(P)—Al Lopez, the smart $50,000 catcher sparking the flashy first division drive of the one-listless Pirates, said today the Pittsburgh club should finish in the National league's third place and "maybe higher."

The Bucs, having stolen fifth place from the St. Louis Cards this week, will try to knock the Cubs out of the first division in a four-game series starting tonight. The Pirates are now only a half-game behind the fourth-place Cubs and are fast approaching the wild, third-position Pirates.

The Pirates' renaissance started at the time the club bought Lopez from the Boston Bees some weeks ago. One of the cleverest back-stoppers in the business, he has made the pitching shine through wise handling and has pulled sensational plays himself to save ball games.

Hurls One-Hitter but Loses Game by 1 to 0

Minneapolis—(P)—Dwain (Lefty) Sloat felt today like the fellow who threw away the winning ticket on a horse race. He pitched a one-hitter for Grand Forks of the Northern baseball league last night but lost to Wausau, 1-0.

Three walks and an error by third baseman Grant let in the only run in the second inning. Dutch Lemmer holding the losers to four hits.

Superior, trailing league-leading Grand Forks by eight games, lost to Winnipeg, 8-7, the victory putting the Maroons within two and one-half games of second-place Superior.

Duluth stopped a ninth inning rally of Fargo-Moorhead at four runs to win, 6-5, while Crookston handed last-place Eau Claire another beating, 8-5.

Marathon Mills took Vets into camp in a peculiar ball game which saw all of the scores made in the first two innings. Wausau counted its only run in the initial frame while Menasha plated two in the first and three in the second. After a shaky start, Westberg settled down and hurled steady ball for the winners, allowing but four hits. It took Thiele two innings before he got into the groove.

Kraus Bangs Homer
Wausau went to work on Westberg in the first frame as Pope hit to left for a base, A. Danielson singled to send Pope to third and L. Danielson singled to score Pope and moved A. Danielson to third. Westberg put on the brakes and retired the next three men in order. They got their fourth hit in the second inning and from there on it was no-hit ball.

The paper men got off to a flying start as Coopman singled and tallied as L. Kraus belted a long home run in deep center. They collected three more runs in the second as Kettering singled and scored on a double cracked by R. Wiatrowski. Westberg tripled to count Wiatrowski and scored on a single by L. Kraus. Menasha could do little at the plate after the second inning and the feature of their play the rest of the route was Kettering's brilliant catches in right field.

SUNDAY'S GAMES
Greenville Merchants at Dale.
Greenville Grange at Little Chute.
Shiocton at Black Creek.
Appleton at Nichols.
Galesburg at Freedom.

Little Chute — The league-leading Freedom baseball team will have to hurdle Galesburg next Sunday if it expects to stay in the running for the Outagamie County league lead. The Gales have Lefty Neuman on the mound and if he is "on" a pitcher's battle will be the result. Freedom has Sherman Kapp to toil. Kapp has lost only one game, to Little Chute, since he signed with the Sagoli tribe. His record shows four wins and one loss for the second round. Last Sunday he blanked Black Creek, first-half winner, to the tune of 4 to 0. Part of the credit goes to his veteran receiver, Heinie Schommer, who knows more baseball than any player in the league. Schommer again will don the big mitt Sunday. Blom will do the receiving for the Galesburg club.

Shiocton will invade Black Creek with Miller or Shaw on the mound for the Creokers and Le Capitaine receiving. Mike Miller is expected to toe the hill for Shiocton with Thomas on the receiving end. The Creokers were let down with only four bingles by Kapp of Freedom last Sunday.

Appleton treks to Nichols with the latter doped to emerge as the victor with Smokey Fitzgerald on the mound. He has a fast hopper combined with a slow ball making him effective against all kinds of hitters. Joe Krull will be on the receiving end. Tommy Reider will be on the hill for the Adler Braus with Bill Besch on the receiving end.

Appleton has a couple of postponed games to play in the second half. One is with Black Creek and will be played on Aug. 22 as a starlight tilt at Appleton. The other is at Little Chute. The Braus still have a chance to cop round honors.

The fifth league game will have the hapless Greenville Merchants at Dale. Dale will have Poppy on the mound with Cornell receiving while the Merchants will have Natrop to toil for them with Schulz receiving.

Cedar Rapids Has Edge In Three-Eye Batting

By The Associated Press

Cedar Rapids held the edge today in its duel with Clinton for second place in the Three Eye league. Virtually tied as the series opened last night, the Red Raiders took over undisputed possession of the runner-up post with a four to three victory. A ninth-inning rally brought in the tying and winning runs. Victory boosted the winners within a game and a half of Springfield, which was scheduled to face Decatur but kept idle by wet grounds.

In the only other game Evansville punched across one run in the seventh to nose out Moline, 4 to 3. After both teams had opened with three runs in the first inning, Waterloo took on its parent club, the Chicago White Sox, in an exhibition game and lost in 10 innings, 7 to 5.

Veteran of Harness Racing Is Back in Harness Himself

BY PETE WALCH

Weyauwega—Less than a month ago Paul Robert Zimdars, 68, proprietor of the harness shop in Weyauwega, and a race horse-enthusiast, trainer, owner, and driver for many years, was working his two-year old bay stallion Axworthy the Great, on the track at the Waupaca county fair grounds here.

The horse shied at a bicycle rider traveling close to the oval, stopped dead in his tracks, and Paul was catapulted forward out of the sulky. He landed on the horse's neck, just as Axworthy, himself, fell to the ground. The stallion, "very lucky," was uninjured, and Paul drove him around the track once after the spill, but when the driver visited a doctor after limping painfully around on his bad leg for a time, he was told that he'd cracked a bone in his foot.

"It may take me several weeks to get over this bum leg," Paul remarked mournfully at that time, "but I'll be up and around to drive that nag in the races come fall time."

And that's exactly what he's going to do in the harness races scheduled for the fair at Weyauwega on Saturday and Sunday, August 10 and 11. He's entered two of his stable, Axworthy the Great and Honey O'Brien in the meet here, and will drive at least one of them—perhaps both.

Never Worries
Accidents never have worried Paul very much, and he's been laid up a number of times, but he always frets because his enforced idleness halts the process of training the horses. Earlier this summer, Mr. Zimdars was injured when a bit broke while he was working one of his horses. Paul jumped off the gig as the racer ran down the track, but he was seriously bruised. His most serious injuries were sustained a few years back when he was thrown from a sulky during a race, dislocating his shoulder and was hurt internally.

But these accidents are just a part of the life of a horse trainer, and they're just incidents to Paul. His wife has given up the idea that Paul might some day get enough of the race track (if she ever had any desire that he do so) and accepts all the triumphs and disappointments along with her husband.

For more than half a century, Paul Zimdars has been connected with race horses in one capacity or another. Born at DePere 67 years ago next August 16, he grew up with horses for companions, drove teams that hauled freight and fuel and every possible commodity through and around DePere streets as a youth, and worked in the woods with the draft horses at the comparatively tender age of eighteen.

Learned Trade

In his spare time he learned the harness and shoe repair trade in DePere, and thereby hangs the tale as to how he first became interested in the fast steppers. Then, as now, DePere was one of the hottest harness racing centers in the state, and drivers and trainers were working their horses on the track in that city continually. Paul came to know many of the men, repaired harnesses for some of the crack pacers and trotters, made boots and other equipment for the ponies. Then, too, he hung around the barns as much as he could, and on many occasions good natured trainers would let him job their horses around the track.

The passion for the track and for racing horses that started during those boyhood days has stayed with the man during all the ensuing years. It culminated one day in the purchase of Mr. Zimdars' first race horse, Tony H, a bay gelding that held a 2:15 record when he bought his first race horse, and he's owned them ever since. Tony H was bought for $150 cash plus an ancient work horse, and the pacer won any number of races until he broke his leg one afternoon and had to be destroyed. Shortly thereafter Paul and his wife (they've been married 43 years) moved from DePere to Dale, then to Redfield, and finally to Weyauwega in 1910. He bought considerable property and several buildings here, and started the harness shop which he operates to this day. All these years he has consistently owned, trained and driven harness racing horses.

Best of All
Probably the best of them all was Major Ong, a big gelding, which Paul owned some twenty years ago. Major Ong, whose record was 2:03 for the mile, was a Grand Circuit performer at the time Paul bought him for $500. The horse was 12 years old then and had burned up tracks throughout the United States and Canada. However, the Major appeared to be about through, and the owner was glad to get rid of him for the five one-hundred dollar bills that Paul offered.

The crack pacer, raced off its feet, weighed but 700 pounds when Paul brought him to Weyauwega. The local trainer, however, nursed him carefully until the Major was at full strength once more, and then Paul really went to town on all the tracks in Wisconsin, together with some in Illinois and Michigan. He loves to recall the time that he started Major Ong in two races in one afternoon here on the Weyauwega track—and won both of them from the best horses in the middle west.

He is Gano the Great, the 16-year old mare that the local trainer still owns. Zimdars owned Gano's mother, Lady Broadway, and raised the great little mare from a colt. She's paid him back many times over for all the care, expense, and time he has lavished on her.

Gano Has Record

Gano the Great has a record of 2:08, but could and has traveled faster than that upon several occasions. She and her sister, Sneaky Gano, also owned by Paul, won many a race on tracks throughout the middle west a few years ago. Some ten years back the pair was taken to the famed harness racing meet of the Cook county fairgrounds at Chicago, where they were the sensations of the event, entering as unknowns and leaving heralded throughout the entire racing world.

Paul started Gano the Great twelve times that season, and the mare won 10 races, finishing second twice. Later he trained the pacer to travel alone, and she was billed as the Lone Pacer. Gano hasn't raced for several years, and she's sort of living the life of a contented matron, getting old and fat and motherly.

Paul hasn't raced much, either, during late years, but he continues to train his stable of four horses out at the fairgrounds. Never misses a day, winter or summer, making his trip to the barns if it's at all possible to get there.

Right now he's particularly proud of a 5-year old sorrel mare, Honey O'Brien. Paul saw her work at the state fair track two years ago. She was wild, fractious, and nervous, and on one occasion ran away from her handlers. Paul liked her looks, in spite of these handicaps, he knew she had good breeding, so he bought her, took her to Weyauwega, and started the long, tedious task of training her to behave and to pace with a sulky and driver. He's clocked her in 2:17 and will drive her in one of the races here.

The other three horses include Axworthy the Great, a two-year old bay stallion that will also race this fall, Peter the Great, Jr., a yearling gelding, and old Gano the Great.

Has New Colt

"Oh, by golly, yes," Paul recalls, "I almost forgot. Gano made me the present the other day of a brand new stallion. The colt's out of Gano by Hanover Medium, who had a mark of 2:02 as a two-year old. He's only a month old himself right now, but I wouldn't be surprised that after I take him in hand, train him for a few years, give him the right kind of treatment, handling, and advice, that he's apt to go out and make some track history of his own some day. Maybe he'll even get on the Grand Circuit."

And the eyes of this 66-year old veteran of harness racing had a new gleam in them and a look of pleased anticipation as his thoughts wandered to these glorious possibilities.

BONNIE PRINCE CHARLIE

Perhaps you have heard of "Bonnie Prince Charlie." He was a member of the House of Stuart after the Stuarts had ended their days as rulers of Great Britain.

The last Stuart king, James II, had lost the throne and had fled to France. One of his grandsons was Bonnie Prince Charlie.

All through his boyhood, Prince Charles was made to feel his right to the British throne. He was told that the king then, ruling Great Britain was not the true heir to the throne.

The English, on their part, seemed quite content to be rid of the Stuart kings. They had suffered too much trouble while Charles I, Charles II and James II were in power.

Prince Charles grew to be a young man who, as we are told, was "handsome in a girlish way." He entered into a plot with the French to invade England.

The French made ready to send a large fleet across the English channel, and hoped to land several thousand soldiers. A British fleet was gathered to halt the invasion.

Then came storms, and the French fleet was held back. The plan was given up by the French, but Bonnie Prince Charlie did not lose hope. He made ready to sail to Scotland without an army. In Scotland he thought the people would rise to join him.

When Bonnie Prince Charlie reached Scotland, there were not so many cheers for him as he had expected. Many Scots said they would not help fight a war against England.

Other Scots gathered around the prince. They included members of the Macdonald, Gordon and Mackintosh clans.

With 5,000 men, Prince Charles marched through Scotland and into northern England. A few small victories were obtained, but then the prince was forced to retreat into Scotland. An English army in Scotland dealt him a heavy defeat, and his soldiers were scattered.

Bonnie Prince Charlie was at this time 26 years old. He escaped from the battlefield, but for five months could not get out of Scotland. Taking the disguise of a lady's maid, he at length traveled to a port where a French vessel took him aboard and carried him back to France.

The World of STAMPS

A special cachet is added to the seagoing postmark for covers properly prepared and mailed aboard the S. S. America, largest commercial ship ever built in America, for the maiden voyage Aug. 10-22. The announcement called for the envelopes and requests to be addressed to the Postmaster, New York, N. Y., by Aug. 8. The ship was scheduled to sail from New York to West Indies ports.

In the American artists series only the 1-cent Gilbert Charles Stuart and the 2-cent James McNeill Whistler stamps have gone to press, according to July announcement from the Post Office department.

The Stuart portrait on a stamp is especially interesting to philatelists who know him as the painter of or-

Rouben Mamoulian, for forgetting his directorial might and inviting "The Californian" troupe and crew to contribute suggestions, with assurance that authors of worthwhile ideas would receive credit and cash. The press department at Paramount, for chipping in to pay hospital expenses for child-actress Betty Brewer, who isn't in the money—yet. NO BELLS to the zanies who advised Richard Greene, a nice lad, to demand a commission in "volunteering" for Canadian army service, thereby exposing his motives to suspicion. East Coast fashion editors, for sneering at Hollywood styles—then rushing themselves or associates to this coast to get photos for their magazines.

Producer Graham Baker is telling us, about a panhandler who begged him for a dime. "You can't be hungry," observed Graham, "you've a toothpick in your mouth." "Aw, that don't mean nothin'," reported the bum, "it's just Hollywood, mister. Out here, a guy's gotta put up a front!" (Distributed by The McNaught Syndicate, Inc.)

Quartet Tournaments Offer Fun for Singer and Listener

Barbershop Quartet tournaments have provided fun and entertainment for both the singers and listeners in various parts of the United States in the last few years. In fact, the singers and audience have argued afterwards as to who had the most fun. From Oklahoma to New York city, from Detroit to the southland, the 4-man harmonizing unit that gives out with such familiar ditties as "I Wonder Who's Kissing Her Now" and "Let Me Hum A Hymn."

Here is what Harvey Enders, eminent composer and president of the Associated Glee Clubs of New York city has to say of New York's fourth annual contest in reporting it for the magazine, "The Keynote."

"Gentle readers, it was some night believe me! I have heard many, many quartets—composed for them, arranged for them, judged them, and what-not—but there was a new experience in store for me. I actually saw and heard a quartet made up of five men. Here was the first quartet I had ever encountered, much less heard, that carried a spare—yes sir, a spare.

"That fifth fellow hung on the rim and stepped into any part on a moment's notice. If the first tenor started to wheeze with a leaky valve—in would step the spare. If the second bass had a blow out (through exhaustion), bingo, the spare took over his part. He was a sort of balloon-type, gum-dipped varbler with an 8-ply range."

Bear Stories Always Seem to be Amusing

Yellowstone National Park — The summer of 1940 has produced a couple of good bear yarns. Ranger De Lyle Stevens tells about the tourist from Minnesota who shouted up in a cloud of dust and snarled: "There's a bear loose!" Stevens broke the news gently that there are approximately 800 bears at large in the park, including man-killing grizzlies, and it's hardly possible to drive through the place without seeing dozens of them.

Then there were the women who were fishing near Pear lake. One of them hooked a big trout. The other glanced up and saw a bear.

"So we've got a wide new trail to Pear lake now," chorled a CCC boy. "The women made it, through the underbrush and timber."

GIRLS REHEARSE FOR KAUKAUNA PAGEANT—Young ladies are shown in the Kaukauna High school gymnasium participating in a "Jackie drill" for the Kaukauna sequentennial celebration pageant. ## Hits Topped Only by Errors In Battle of Fats and Leans Kaukauna—If last night's game between the "Fats" and the "Leans" advanced nothing towards scientific baseball, it contributed its share of humor. The "Leans" captained by Les C. Smith set down the "Fats," headed by Nic Mertes, 21 to 13.

Last night's game approached more of a comedy than a baseball game with the two sides changing their batting order faster than the fabulous chameleon could change its spots.

John Coppes starred for the "Fats" by hitting a home run and allowing only 11 runs in the last three innings which he pitched. Preceding him on the mound were Nic Mertes, Frank Femal, Rabideau, and George Greenwood. Les Smith, Emil Gordana, and Henry Minkebege did the hurling for the "Leans."

The teams used a 16 inch balloon ball which supposedly would not go far when hit, if the pitcher did not find the ball too heavy and cumbersome to even throw to the plate. Nevertheless the number of hits was high, exceeded only by the number of errors.

The "Leans" scored four runs in the first inning, one in the second, and one in the third. They also got three markers in the fourth, eight in the sixth, three in the seventh, and went scoreless in the eighth.

The "Fats" began with three runs in the first, one in the second, none in the third, but three in the fourth and four runs in the fifth. They got another two runs in the sixth but from then on were held scoreless.

The two teams were chosen on the field from those men, who were over 35 years old and who appeared ready to play.

On the "Fats" team besides Captain Nic Mertes included George Greenwood, Emil Franz, Al Wagner, Peter Huss, R. Franz, G. Bauer, O. Meyer, K. Anderson, B. Lammer, John Coppes, Frank Femal, Herman Baier, and J. Vandenberg. The roster of the "Leans" consisted of Les C. Smith, Charley Skell, Lester Brenzel, Henry Minkebege, C. Robedeau, Emil Gordana, P. Dreger, H. White, B. Kraft, Joe Dittler, Bill Lambie, Joe Steger, J. Nagel and Emmet Kavanaugh.

Old Kaukauna Movie Will Be Shown as Part of Celebration

Kaukauna—Coinciding with the celebration of the sequentennial next week will be a movie depicting Kaukauna as it appeared 25 years ago. The movie will be shown by William Van Dyke, manager of the Vaudeville theater here. It will be presented every night beginning Sunday and lasting for a week.

The movie, "Kaukauna Adopts a Baby," is one of the old silent films, and was taken in Kaukauna and such comedy stars as Postmaster Richard H. McCarty, C. E. Raught, Mrs. F. Wetengel, formerly Blanche St. Andrews of this city, E. F. Renniecke, and a cast of others from Kaukauna.

Dick McCarty plays the part of a henpecked husband with Mrs. Wetengel as the nagging screen wife. Ed Renniecke is the town cutup.

Accompanying this comedy will be a movie showing Kaukauna industries and business houses, and several other scenes here as they appeared 20 years ago. One of the scenes will be that of the preparedness parade April 15, 1917.

The Merchants' scoring was led by Regen with two runs while Reinholz, Gordana, Joe McGowan, and Petersen each got one marker.

In the second game the Modern Shoes were led by Reith and Spice who got three runs each, followed by Derus with two runs, and a run apiece by Mack, Niez, and Roberts. The scoring for the Merchants was divided among Walsh with two runs, and McLaughlin, McGowan, Reinholz, Regene, and Peters, all of whom counted for one run.

Public Turns Thumbs Down on Double Feature Movie Program

DR. GEORGE GALLUP
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J.—The American public by a vote of 57-43 casts its lot against double-bill motion picture programs—a topic of heated debate in American homes for the last decade or more.

This fact is revealed in a survey conducted by the Institute to determine just what the men, women and children in all of the 48 states of the country think about the much-discussed problem of double bills. The cross-section of the population used in the study was especially drawn up to include children down to the age of six, since a substantial portion of motion picture audiences is composed of minors. The question put to persons included in the survey was:

"Would you rather go to a motion picture theater showing a single feature or to one showing a double feature?"

The vote of all groups is: For Single Features ..... 57% For Double Features ..... 43%

The reasons most frequently given by those opposing double bills in order of importance are: (1) that either one or both of the features is likely to be a "poor" picture; (2) that sitting through a double feature is fatiguing and takes too much time; and (3) that seeing two full-length pictures is confusing because as one woman put it, "You generally think about a picture when you get home and a double feature gets you mixed up."

Those who like double features give as their chief reasons: (1) that a double bill gives movie goers more for their money; (2) if one picture is inferior, the other is likely to be good and in any event adds variety; and (3) a double feature gives those who attend a chance to "kill more time."

The importance of "poor pictures" as a reason for opposing double bills is established by another question included in the study. People were asked whether they would change their attitude toward double feature programs if both pictures in a double bill were good. When this qualification is added, the vote for double features becomes a majority—66 per cent, to 34 per cent opposed.

One interesting fact brought to light by the survey is a sharp difference of opinion on double feature picture policy is clearly indicated.

The results by sections follow:

Section	For Single Features	For Double Features
New Eng.	43%	57%
Mid. Atlantic	55	45
East Central	62	38
West Central	57	43
South	58	42
Rocky Mount.	62	38
Pacific Coast	56	44

The results of the survey go a long way toward explaining a seeming paradox in the motion picture industry.

Theater owners have long known that most people say they prefer single features. But when individual exhibitors have changed from a double to a single policy, their business has declined.

Theaters which draw a large part of their patronage from children and the poorer classes, and theaters located in a part of the country which favors double features, would obviously suffer by changing to single features, particularly if the single features are not of sufficient quality to attract patrons in the higher age and income levels.

From the point of view of the motion picture industry itself the single feature policy is clearly indicated.

years of age and persons over 18. Likewise there is a wide difference in attitude between persons in the higher income group and those in the lower income group.

In general, the double feature is popular among persons under 18 years and among persons in the lower income level, as the following tables show:

AGE GROUPS	For Single Features	For Double Features
Age 6 to 12	23%	77%
Aged 12 to 17	42	58
Aged 18 to 24	60	40
Aged 24 and over 68	52	48

INCOME GROUPS	For Single Features	For Double Features
Upper Income Group	75%	25%
Middle Income Group	63	37
Lower Income Group	47	53
On Relief	42	58

The importance of the younger age groups can be seen from the fact that more than 60 per cent of all theater tickets bought in the nation each week, as established by this survey, are purchased by persons under 30 years of age.

Another striking fact is that New England is the only section of the country where a majority of the whole population prefers double bills. All the other sections vote against the double feature by majorities of 55 per cent or more, while in New England the double bill is preferred by a vote of nearly six to four.
